FARM MEASURE FACES CHANGE BY CONFEREES

Confusion Over Action of House on Equalization Fee
May Cause Amendments

WANT CAL'S APPROVAL

Think Postponement of Fee
Will Permit Passage of Bill, Start Relief Plan

Washington—Confusion over the action of the House of Representatives with reference to the equalization fee in the McNary-Haugen bill has developed to such a point that before the bill finally gets through conference, it may be so amended that it can gain executive approval.

The vote in the House on Wednesday was to a large extent due to a misapprehension on the part of various members but it is an open secret that the opponents of the equalization fee have taken advantage of a weakness on the part of the friends of the plan when they permitted the actual operation of the fee to be postponed.

The original advocates of the bill insisted that the equalization fee was the heart of the measure and many of them looked askance when the bill was brought into the House amended so that the equalization fee would go into effect only if the other measures to control the surplus had failed.

Many members now reason that if the equalization fee can be postponed indefinitely, it may permit the passage of the bill and a start can be made on some farm relief plan.

It also means that the equalization fee could be tacked on in the next session of Congress if it was found that an agricultural crisis had arisen requiring its application. To get the Mc-Nary-Haugen bill into operation without the equalization fee and to get the approval of the administration would have an important political effect in the middle west. While those who favor the equalization fee would not diminish their opposition, it would nevertheless divide the ranks of those who have insisted that they favor the McNary-Haugen plan without the equalization fee because the administration offered no alternative.

OLD STORM CENTER

The members of the House know that the Senate bill with the equalization fee has been a storm center of discussion and it is generally believed that the bill, even if passed by the House without the equalization fee, would be acceptable to the Senate. If the bill develops a deadlock and the question goes over to the next session for settlement, the members of both houses of Congress would be just as happy though there are many who believe the republican party cannot afford to go to the country without having a farm relief bill of some kind on the statute books this year.

DISSOLVE CASE PLOW

WORKS INC. AT RACINE

Racine—(AP)—Dissolution of the J.
I. Case Plow Works, Inc., was voted by stockholders at a meeting here Thursday. The Massey-Harris Co.
of Canada, now controls the Case company and intends to operate the plant here and increase the production,
it was announced.

The dissolution plan provides that preferred stockholders be paid $60 a share and holders of the 160,000 shares of no-par Class B stock approximately $10 a share. The plan agrees by preferred stockholders to accept $60 a share leaves $252, 420 for the common stock, it was announced by J. C. Weyland, president of the Case Co.

NEED FIVE POLICEMEN

TO QUIET STUDENT MOB

Milwaukee—(AP)—It took five policemen to quiet a group of West Division high school students who cathe-drized this noon in front of the home of Winifred C. Howe, ousted teacher, to hear speeches and ostensibly to circulate petitions for his reinstatement.

Howe disclaimed any responsibility for the meeting except that he furnished a table and chairs and made a speech claiming that he had been unfairly ousted because of his fight for a "free school press."

New York—(AP)—Cornelius L. Winant, stock broker and brother of former governor John G. Winant of New Hampshire, died Thursday night at the Princeton club under circumstances which caused a police investigation Friday.

Dazed and bleeding from the nose and with scratches on his face, Winant entered the club at 8 o'clock and died two hours later. He had been examined, ordered an autopsy when he noted a bruise and a possible fracture of the skull.

SEEKS RECORD

BOY KILLED AS HE RUNS AHEAD OF AUTOMOBILE

6-Year-old Youngster Fatally Injured While Playing in Street

Kenneth Kahn, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Kahn, Milwaukee, was fatally injured by a car driven by Phil Jacobson, 815 N. Onei-dust. The boy was the grandson of Mrs. Frank Jones, 603 N. Clark-st., with whom he had been living for four years.

The boy and his grandmother had gone to the home of F. H. Miller, 224
E. Winnebago-st., for a visit Thursday evening and Kenneth, with other small children, was playing on the boulevard on the south side of the street.

Darting into the street from behind another machine parked at 819 E.
Winnebago-st., the boy ran directly in front of Jacobson's machine going east on Winnebago-st. The right front fender of the car struck the boy and hurled him to the ground.

Jacobson carried the child into the residence of E. E. Schneider, 919 E.
Winnebago-st., and an ambulance was summoned to take him to St. Elizabeth hospital but he died before reaching the institution. Dr. Francis Huber, an interne at the hospital, presented the boy dead but did not make an examination to determine injuries that caused death.

The body was taken to Dretschneider's Undertaking parlors where it will remain until Saturday afternoon when it is to be taken to the home of the grandparents. Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock Sunday morning at the home of the grandparents and the body will be taken to Milwaukee for burial. Survivors are his parents and one sister.

No inquest will be held it was decided by Coroner H. E. Ellsworth, Assistant District Attorney Stanley A.
Prim, and Police Chief George T.
Pratt. The three officials made an investigation of the accident Friday morning and decided there was no criminal negligence on Jacobson's part.

On his flight which ended Thursday night at 11:55 Eastern daylight time he fell almost 20 hours short of the world's endurance record. He was in the air 35 hours, 23 minutes and 59 seconds.

He set a new record for sustained solo flight, bettering by almost two hours the mark of Colonel Charles A.
Lindbergh in his flight to Paris last May.

Thomas was groggy when he landed but quickly recovered and appeared little the worse for his long sleep

ROAMING "TIGER" BRINGS NEAR PANIC TO MILWAUKEE FOLK

Milwaukee—(AP)—"Police headquarters? There's a tiger or some sort of wild animal roaming around here. Is it safe to go out? Is it safe to send the children to school?" These and hundreds of other queries besieged police Thursday night and Friday morning as distraught residents of Milwaukee's west side residential district reported that a wild animal of some sort, four swore it was a tiger, was roaming the district.

The police were inclined to think the "tiger" was some large dog, but they were continuing their search Friday morning, hoping to find some trace.

A man and his wife, told police that they were certain the animal sighted was a tiger. The beast slunk along within the shadows near homes they said, and when it headed toward them they sought refuge in a private home.

The animal mounted the steps at their heels and after they were safely within the home they said they heard the animal sniffling at the door.

HOUSE PASSES MEASURE WITH DISPUTED FEE

Senate Next to Smooth Over
Minor Difficulties Before
Cal Receives Bill

Washington—(AP)—The McNary-Haugen farm relief bill Friday entered the last lap of its legislative journey to the White House.

For the second consecutive year the measure, with its disputed equalization fee for crop stabilization, was approved Thursday night by the house.
The vote was 241 to 121.

The bill now must go back to the Senate for a smoothing over of minor differences. These are expected to be ironed out quickly and President Coolidge then will be forced to pass again upon a farm relief plan containing a provision which prompted him to veto last year's bill.

The house vote was 13 less than the two-thirds majority that would be required to override presidential disapproval, which administration leaders freely predict will be forthcoming.

The vote came after frantic but unsuccessful efforts had been made by opponents of the equalization fee to eliminate that provision, the battle continuing with unabated fury to the very last.

The proposals offered exceeded a score in number, but of these only three were approved. They provided:
Extension of the right to cooperative associations to decide, through the commodity advisory councils that the bill would create, when the equalization fee would be placed in operation.

Application of the fee machinery to packers as well as livestock raisers whenever might be put in operation upon cattle and swine.

Selection of the members of the proposed advisory councils from lists of names to be submitted by government of states as well as cooperatives and other farm organizations.

The Wisconsin roll call on house passage of the bill followed:
Republicans voting for—Beck,
Browne, Cooper, Frear, Nelson, Peavy, Schaefer and Schneider. Socialists voting for—Borger. Paired—Republicans for—Laumert.

OPTON EXPIRES ON SITE FOR THEATRE

Nothing Heard from Fischer Company Since Announcement of New Building

The announcement of the Therapeutic theatre company several weeks ago that a new theatre had shown "positive solution" to their financial problem, has evidently failed to materialize, according to John J. Jones, who owns a property which has been used for the site, and a real estate firm of Carroll and Carroll which obtained the option on the property for the theatre company.

The property, which covered property fronting nearly 150 feet on College ave., just of Superior-st., expired Friday at 12 o'clock and as far as he knew no effort had been made to renew it. The real estate company also stated that nothing had been heard from the theatre company since it lost its option and made the announcement of the proposed building.

Baraboo—(AP)—Action to remove from office Mayor Adolph Andros here Friday morning with the filing of petition with the state of Wisconsin and two local citizens named as plaintiff in the case.

Chief among the reasons cited for removal is alleged election fraud in thwarting legal registration of voters in conformity with the new election law.

The complaint also says that the mayor is holding the municipality in a state of anarchy and is guilty of the crime of the Third ward here.

WITHDRAWALS

Washington—(AP)—Senator Washington of Montana, Friday formally withdrew his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Writing to one of his chief supporters, W. W. McDowell, the Montana senator said the result of the primary in California "quite clearly indicates that the Democrats desire Gov. Smith as their candidate."

The Metropolitan opera house was filled with 3,500 persons who cheered the fliers for five minutes when they appeared. Some ticket speculators were said by police to have reaped a harvest, selling the 50 cents admission tickets for as much as $6.

The proceedings were entirely in German and at this time the two German members of the Bremen's crew had an advantage over their Irish comrade.

Friday evening the Baron is to be presented with 50,000 gold marks
(about $11,000) offered by the Electors Company of Sweden for the first east-west flight across the north Atlantic.
They also will attend a theatre.

CHICAGO POLICE
HEAD WON'T QUIT

Hughes Denies Widely-circulated Rumors of Resignation

Chicago—(AP)—"Go-Get-Em" Michael Hughes made swift denial Friday of widely circulated rumors that he was to resign as commissioner of police.

"I'll not resign. There is no reason why I should," he said over long distance telephone from Excelsior Springs, Mo., where he is recuperating from illness.

Mayor Thompson, who appointed Hughes, said he had heard nothing about it. He said that as far as he was concerned Hughes would stay on the job.

Source of the rumors was veiled, but several of "Go-Get-Em" Mike's associates blamed gangsters for giving them circulation.

Hughes is a relative of State Attorney Robert E. Crowe, and it was suggested by some politicians that Hughes may have considered resigning after Crowe's defeat for renomination at the April primaries.

The five workmen arrested were George Durik, Jack Pike, Don Ducko,
Ward Hall and Vernon Harris.

"Police said Pike 'hood' an officer, and that Harris refused to move on when ordered to do so. The five men had been leading yells by the crowd participating in the demonstration.

NEXT CONVENTION WILL BE BIGGEST IN HISTORY OF C. E.

Committees Making Elaborate Plans for Annual Conference in June

One of the largest state conventions of the Christian Endeavor Union ever held in Wisconsin is planned for Appleton, according to reports at a meeting of officers of the general convention committee and chairmen of standing committees at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday evening.

Clifford Earle, Milwaukee, state extension secretary, and Everett Melvin, Green Bay, president of the Green Bay district of which Appleton is a part, attended the meeting. Mr. Melvin reported that a large number of delegates would be present from Green Bay while Mr. Earle said considerable interest was being shown throughout the state. One hundred twenty reservations now have been made, according to Charlotte DeVoe, registration chairman.

ARRANGE FOR BANQUET

The banquet committee, of which Emma Kippenhan is chairman, has arranged to hold the annual banquet on Saturday evening, June 23, in the dining room of First Methodist church. Meals during convention days will be served at several other churches in the city.

All members and former members of the Christian Endeavor Union in Appleton will be listed as delegates to the convention and assessed the $1 registration fee according to the plans of George F. Werner, chairman of the finance committee. It is expected that most of the expenses of the convention will be paid from registration fees.

Delegates arriving in Appleton by rail will be furnished transportation to convention places, and highways leading into the city will be marked to indicate proper routes, according to the report of Harold Eads, chairman of the transportation committee. Adequate parking facilities will be arranged at all meeting places.

Public meetings of convention delegates will be held in Lawrence Memorial chapel, Friday evening, June 22, when Dr. Daniel A. Felling will be the speaker and Sunday morning, June 23, when James Kelly, London, England, will talk. The former is president of the International Christian Endeavor union while the latter is president of the European union. Harold Finger is chairman of the meeting place committee.

A Lawrence college dormitories will be used to house delegates if homes cannot be found for all persons wishing to attend the convention.

Other committee chairmen reporting were Cecil Furlinger, decorations; Newton Walters, ushers; and William Weymouth, literature and entertainment.

Conferences for Christian Endeavor workers are planned for every morning during the convention, according to Mr. Earle. Leaders of national reputation will have charge of the discussions.

The next meeting of the chairman will be held Monday evening, May 14.

PARK BOARD GIVES O. K. TO PAGEANT

Meet Thursday Evening and Discuss Equipment and Caretaker for Golf Course

General park problems were discussed at a meeting of the park board Thursday afternoon at the city hall, among them the proposed pageant at the formal opening of Pierce park, a lighting plan for the park and general equipment and a caretaker for the municipal golf course.

The board approved the pageant, which was suggested several weeks ago by Edward Mumm, director of the 120th field artillery band, and Prof. Earl Baker, director of music in the public schools. The date of the pageant is not definite.

Several items of equipment for the municipal golf course were discussed by the board members. Peter Flemming has been appointed groundskeeper by the board. He formerly was assistant at Butte des Morts country club.

Although all the parks have been cleaned up no radical changes have taken place. There has been a move on at Pierce park to place the tennis courts in a less conspicuous place than the front of the park, but nothing will be done about the change at present, the board indicated.

DELINQUENT TAXPAYERS SUBJECT TO PENALTIES

Residents of Outagamie county who have not paid their real estate taxes must pay an additional 1 percent penalty for failing to pay before May 1, according to Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, county treasurer. The 1 percent penalty is assessed in addition to the regular 2 percent penalty for failure to pay within the time set by law. Delinquents also must pay 4 percent interest on overdue taxes.

Miss Ziegenhagen Thursday has arranged for publication of the delinquent tax list before the tax sale in June. A fee of 25 cents is assessed against each piece of property, according to the treasurer, as a charge for advertising the tax.

NOT MUCH MOVING DONE HERE MAY 1

Probably not more than ten Appleton families moved on May 1, usually regarded as "moving day." Local transfer and moving companies say few people here move on May 1, but that most of the moving is done in the last week of April.

Fewer families moved this year because of the lack of flats and houses for rent, according to local real estate men. One mover transferred three Appleton families out of the city on May 1. Two families were moved to Milwaukee and one family to Racine.

WANT OREGON DELEGATES

Herbert Hoover is unopposed for the Oregon republican delegation at the May 18 primaries, but democrats may vote for Smith, Reed or Walsh. John C. Veach, (left) is the Smith manager, while the latest vigorous foe of Smith's candidacy is former Gov. Oswald West (upper right). Rep. Hamilton Fish of New York (below) has filed for the republican vice presidential preference.

CONSIDER WHOLE VALLEY AS UNIT IN FIRE FIGHTING

Cooperative District Probably Will Be Extended, Fire Chief Says

A meeting of fire chiefs from all cities and villages in the Fox River valley from Green Bay to Fond du Lac for the purpose of devising a system of cooperative fire fighting, is in prospect as the result of the recent meeting of fire chiefs from Kaukauna, Little Chute, Combined Locks, Kimberly and Appleton, according to George P. McGilgan, local fire chief.

Chief McGilgan said a definite plan for cooperatively fighting fires in the five municipalities in this immediate vicinity had been completed and the fire chiefs now are considering extending the cooperative district to include De Pere, Green Bay, Neenah, Menasha, Oshkosh and Fond du Lac. Standardized fire fighting apparatus now are employed in Kaukauna, Menasha, Little Chute, Kimberly, Combined Locks and Appleton, Chief McGilgan said. Green Bay is at present standardizing its equipment and Neenah, Oshkosh, De Pere and Fond du Lac, are contemplating changes, Chief McGilgan said.

Under the system approved by the fire chiefs, which must also be approved by the common councils of each municipality, the fire fighting equipment of one village or city will protect the homes of its nearest neighbor when the equipment from that place is called to assist in another village or city.

The plan, as adopted by the fire chiefs, grew out of a recent meeting of fire chiefs and village and city heads at Little Chute, at which the cooperative plan was discussed. The meeting was called by Anton Jansen, village president of Little Chute.

The Irving Zuelke building fire at Appleton, caused Mr. Jansen to call the meeting for the purpose of having a definite understanding among the fire departments of the various cities.

APPLETON SHARES IN ROAD APPROPRIATION

Part of Soo Line's Million Dollars Used to Fix Up Buildings Here

Numerous improvements are being made at the Soo line freight and passenger depot, Chicago, with part of the $1,000,000 appropriation made by the road this year. The passenger depot is being redecorated and a section of current platform added. Sidewalks around the depot are being repaired and new sections added. A new roof is being put on the freight depot and a new floor has been laid in the warehouse. New siding also will be laid on W. College street, near the Knott Lumber company, according to George Sweetman, freight agent.

The biggest improvements will be the relaying of 6 1/2 miles of the present steel with 100 and 110 pound rail on the Fond du Lac division between Waukesha and Medina Junction. The railroad also is replacing a wooden bridge with one with steel girders on concrete abutments at Burlington. This improvement is to cost approximately $70,000.

PETER MARET JAILED ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Peter Maret, proprietor of Riverside hotel, Menasha, was arraigned in municipal court at Oshkosh this week on a charge of illegal possession of liquor. He pleaded not guilty and his preliminary examination has been set for May 7. He was unable to furnish $1,000 bonds and is being held at the Winthrop jail.

According to the complaint against Maret, he was convicted twice of similar offenses, on Sept. 24, 1926 and April 21, 1927. His arrest followed a raid on his establishment by state prohibition officers last week. Five pairs of altered moonshine were found in an old gas stove, even.

PAYS $1 FINE FOR JUMPING ARTERIAL

Orville Finnegan, Greenleaf, was fined $1 and costs by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Friday morning when he pleaded guilty of failing to stop at an arterial highway sign. Finnegan was arrested Thursday afternoon by Motorist's Officer Gus Hersekorn, at the intersection of S. Appleton and S. Oneida streets.

SMITH, REED AND WALSH FIGHT FOR OREGON DELEGATES

Candidates Concede Republicans Will Give Support to Hoover

Portland, Ore.—(AP)—The presidential primary on May 18 will be Herbert Hoover day for Oregon republicans.

The secretary of commerce is unopposed on their ballot, so the opportunity provided is limited to polling an endorsement of the candidacy of one who spent his boyhood days in this state and left it as a somewhat "serious" small-town youth, short of funds, but long on ambition to work his way through a university education.

Ranking their candidates as a "favorite son," Secretary Hoover's supporters have confined their campaign to a plea for a large vote to make the state's endorsement of him impressive.

On the Democratic side there is a lively three-cornered fight for convention delegates.

Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York sponsored by the Oregon Smith-for-President club, headed by John C. Veach, Portland attorney, entered the primary campaign early. His candidacy found an outspoken antagonist in Oswald West, former governor of Oregon, who enlisted the campaign by attacking the New York executive and his Oregon backers.

West filed declarations of candidacy for both of Smith's opponents—Senator James A. Reed of Missouri and Thomas J. Walsh of Montana—but was not identified with the campaign organizations of either.

Harvey W. Starkweather, Portland attorney and long active in Democratic circles, became manager of the Walsh organization. The Reed campaign moved along without any directing hand.

Fred E. Kiddle, a state senator, took charge of the Hoover headquarters and directed such preliminary work as was done for the secretary of commerce.

A fourth democratic candidacy is that of Rev. Alonzo Workman of Joplin, Mo.

Three candidates filed for vice president on the republican ticket, Congressman Hamilton Fish of New York, William B. Webster of Bucyrus, Ohio, and John H. Hall of Portland.

Milton A. Miller of Portland filed for vice president on the democratic ticket.

Oregon does not elect a governor this year, but is to select an attorney general, secretary of state, treasurer and two supreme court justices. Contests for these offices were confined to the republican side.

LANDSCAPE ARTIST AT WORK ON ASYLUM LAWN

Improvement of a half-acre of land in front of the new bans at the county asylum was started this week by E. E. Buttle, landscape gardener for the McKay-Nursery, Madison. The asylum trustees recently awarded the contract to the Madison company for approximately $500. Between 400 and 500 shrubs are to be planted. The work is expected to take four to five days.

EXPECT SEEDING TO BE COMPLETED SOON

Practically all seeding of grain will be completed, on farms in the vicinity of Appleton, this week providing rain does not interfere with the work, according to rural mail carriers at the Appleton Post Office. Every available man, horse and piece of machinery has been pressed into service, in an effort to complete the seeding with as little delay as possible, they say. Already considerable damage will be caused because seeding was delayed by inclement weather, the farmers say.

After the seeding is finished the farmers will prepare their land for planting corn. The land is first covered with fertilizer, then plowed, disced, dragged, harrowed, marked and planted.

SENATOR CURTIS WAS INTERPRETER IN DAYS OF INDIAN ATTACKS

Senator Also Tried Hand as Jockey Until Weight Forced Him to Quit

EDITOR'S NOTE: This, the 21st in a series of Presidential Campaign Portraits written for the Post-Crescent by Robert Talley, tells the story of Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas. Tomorrow's article will discuss Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana.

BY ROBERT TALLEY
Washington—The combined imaginations of Zane Grey and Horatio Alger never pictured a more colorful career than that of Senator Charles Curtis, the dominant but silent figure who serves as Republican leader in the Senate.

In youth an Indian boy on a government reservation, at 10 a jockey riding horses on Kansas race tracks, at 15 a news "bunch" at railway depots, at 17 a back driver in Topeka, at 21 a self-educated lawyer, at 23 a barless prosecutor in Shawnee county, at 24 a congressman, at 47 a senator, now Curtis seeks to climax his career in Washington by being elected president. He was the first candidate to announce, having entered the race last Oct. 26.

Senator Curtis is 68, the oldest of all the candidates. His hair and mustache, with recent years' coal black, are just now beginning to turn gray. He is of medium height, round and solid of figure, wears wrinkled and baggy clothes, does not try to pose as a statesman and is willing for people to take him at his own word. He is a Methodist and a strong prohibitionist.

As the Senate's majority leader, Curtis is the man behind the legislative gun. It is his role to keep the wheels of legislation oiled, to put through the measures that the white House desires, to line up the necessary votes and have them ready when the time comes, to know the position of every senator on every question, to advise the president when something hopeless so it will not be attempted with resultant failure.

Senator Curtis, chosen to succeed the cultured and scholarly Senator Henry Cabot Lodge as majority leader of the Senate when the latter died in 1924, was born on an Indian allotment farm in Kansas in the teens of the Kaw tribe.

His great-great-grandfather was Chief Pawhuskie of the Osages. Three generations ago, Princess White Plume, the chief's granddaughter, married a French trader and his wife named Conville. Their daughter, Julie Conville, was Senator Curtis' grandmother, being the wife of Louis Pappan, another French trader. Ellen Pappan (daughter of Louis Pappan and Julie Conville) was Senator Curtis' mother. She married Capt. Orrin A. Curtis, who had moved to Kansas from Indiana. And so, on Grandmother Julie Pappan's Indian allotment farm near Topeka, the future senator was born on Jan. 25, 1859.

In 1865, when Curtis was eight years old, a band of roving and warlike Cheyennes attacked and surrounded the reservation of the friendly Kaws. Because he could speak both English and Indian, young Curtis was chosen to slip from camp under cover of darkness and make his way to the military post at Topeka for aid. The Kaws' horses had been captured, so Curtis made the 60-mile trip on foot in less than two days. The cavalry came and chased the Cheyennes away.

But Curtis did not go back. Born to the saddle, he got a job as jockey at Topeka and was riding in races by the time he was nine years old. He toured a large part of the west and on one occasion, it is related, Jesse and Frank James held up and robbed the box office at the race track where he was riding. In the winters he attended the public schools, living with his father's people in Topeka.

Increasing weight finally forced Curtis out of the jockey game, so he returned again to the Indians. The Kaws, traveling west, were camped six miles out of Topeka. To Grandmother Julie Pappan's tepee he went, prepared to rejoin the tribe. But Grandmother Julie was wise; she wanted her daughter's child to grow up to be a white man, not a roving Indian. So she persuaded young Curtis to return to Topeka and try to get an education.

Back in Topeka young Curtis sold fruit and candy at the railway station and worked in stores while finishing his schooling. He lived with his paternal grandmother, Parmelia Curtis, who likewise encouraged him to get an education.

As Curtis grew older he felt the need of more income. Knowing horses, he naturally applied to a livery stable owner. The latter gave him a job as a hack driver. Then he began the study of law, often reading his textbooks by the oil lamps on his back while waiting for a fare. Impressed by the youth's determination to get ahead, a veteran Topeka attorney took him into his office.

Curtis was admitted to the bar. When he was 25 (in 1883) he was elected prosecuting attorney. Kansas already had a prohibition law, but nobody paid any attention to it. Curtis, however, considered it his duty to enforce it. He closed every saloon in Topeka in 30 days and kept them closed throughout his four-year term. He has been a strong prohibitionist ever since.

In 1892 Curtis was elected to Congress. He served seven terms there and in 1907 he was elected to the Senate. In 1912 he was re-elected, but he came back in 1914 and has been in the Senate continuously since that time.

TOMORROW: Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana.

TAKE IN $14.377 AT POSTOFFICE IN APRIL

Postal receipts at the Appleton Post Office for April totaled $14,377.24, an increase of $254.59 over April, 1927, when the receipts amounted to $14,122.75. Sale of postage stamps, which netted $12,211.74, was the largest single item during April. Other receipts were as follows: excess on sale of postage stamps, $4.23; second class postage collected from retailers, $1,722.50; postage on private matter, $222.20; box rent, $29.10.

Government Gets 'Cut' On Money Paid For Autos

The move on the part of the automobile manufacturers of the country to abolish the automobile sales tax mean the saving of from 2 to 2½ per cent on the present purchase price of cars, according to a survey of sales prices and the taxes now paid. The auto tax at present is 3 percent the cost of a car to the dealer.

When a light car selling for about $500 is purchased from an auto dealer, the purchaser pays about $12 in taxes; on an $1500 car and the tax is about $35; on a $2500 car about $60 and on another car of the $1700 class about $27.

GROOM MECHANICAL HORSE FOR MARKET

Toy. Made Here. Has Same Effect on Rider as One Used by Coolidge

Appleton Toy and Furniture company was picked from approximately 500 toy manufacturing plants in the United States to manufacture the new toy "Cal's Colt," invented by J. J. Caterham, Los Angeles, Calif. Herbert Kahn, of the toy company, after consideration of the patents and merits of the novelty, agreed to manufacture it.

The toy was named after Calvin Coolidge's mysterious iron horse, consists of a wood seat attached to and forming part of a horse's head from which two traps or handles protrude. The seat is attached to the end of a heavy spring, fastened at the lower end of a heavy wood base. All wood parts are enameled red. The child sits on the seat and bounces himself up and down by action of the spring, thus giving an actual riding effect.

The toy will not tip over and the child is no higher at anytime than on the old fashioned "hokey horse." Because it has no wheels, danger to children is not increased and it also offers plenty of exercise for them.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION SHOWS RAPID GROWTH

Madison—(AP)—Vocational education in Wisconsin is 17 years old. In 1911 the legislature passed a law creating vocational education by legislation throughout the state for all children between 14 and 16 who were not attending academic schools. Later legislation provided the amount of time that must be reserved from working hours for education. By 1927 the vocational program for children of school age certain time off for attending classes. Racine was the first Wisconsin city to establish a vocational school under provisions of 1911. Madison and four or five other cities followed the example in 1912.

Two city officials in Madison were asked to provide more room for vocational students who were badly crowded in their quarters. Today, despite a $551,000 building, the Madison vocational school is still crowded with 1,529 day pupils and 2,450 who attend night classes.

RADIO TIPS OFF RUM DEALERS TO RAIDERS

Manitowish—(AP)—News flashes by a local radio station informed that day enforcement officers visiting saloons and arresting two proprietors undoubtedly saved several other saloons and roadhouse owners from arrest, officers said today. Two liquor law violators, however, were snared. At Rexville the agent

AUCTION OFF DEERS WITH LOCKED HORNS; DIED AFTER BATTLE

Madison—(AP)—The state conservation department will sell at auction on May 16 in Sparta, Wis., two full-grown deer with locked horns mounted on a single pedestal. The deer were found dead in the woods near Babcock last winter and were confiscated by the department.

The department says it is not unusual to find two skulls of deer with antlers locked, because, in fighting, the bucks frequently perish. This is the first time in many years, however, that two have been found shortly after their death, and before their carcasses were decayed or destroyed by other wild animals.

FIGHT OVER OFFICE SPACE INTO COURT

Madison—(AP)—Again the fight over office space assignments in the state capitol is before the courts. The Dane-co. circuit court has set Friday as date for rehearing of mandamus petition brought by the attorney general on behalf of the land commission to compel the capitol housing committee to return the land commission to its former quarters.

The court recently held that the committee, composed of Gov. Fred R. Zimmerman, C. B. Ballard, superintendent of public property, and C. A. Halbert, state chief engineer, had sole jurisdiction in the assignment of quarters. The attorney general has moved for the rehearing for the introduction of additional evidence.

The case had its inception in the removal by the governor and Mr. Ballard of A. D. Campbell, chief clerk of the land commission, from an office he had been sharing with O. A. Stoltenberg, state humane agent. The commission, composed of John W. Reynolds, attorney general, Solomon Levitan, state treasurer, and Theodore Damman, secretary of state, immediately took court action to have its office restored.

EMPLOY WARDEN FOR LEGION GAME PRESERVE

Madison—(AP)—The conservation commission may employ a game warden for the American Legion Forest Preserve and Game Refuge near Tonawash Lake, and pay his salary from conservation funds, the attorney general has advised L. E. Nagler, director of conservation.

The state-owned lands in the Legion preserve are under control of the commission, and no hunting or trapping is allowed on them. The commission is authorized to enter into arrangements with the Wisconsin department of the Legion by which the veterans' organization will assume the care, development and protection of the preserve as part of its activities.

Cannot Learn Foreign Language In Two Years

In the two-year modern language courses in French and German as given in Appleton high school, the aim is not and can not be to produce a linguist, that is, one skilled in using readily the language he is studying, according to the opinions of the faculty members of the language department at the high school.

It is erroneous to believe a high school student after two years of study can be able to converse fluently with a native of France or Germany, the teachers said. One should realize, they say, that foreigners who come to our country do not learn its English language in two years of schooling of one hour a day. The native German, Spaniard or Frenchman finds that here he must learn to express himself in English to be understood unless he settles in a quarter where all conversation is carried on in the mother tongue.

On the contrary, the high school foreign language student is exposed to the German, French or Spanish language only a small part of the day. It is the teacher's aim to give him an elementary understanding of the grammar and idioms, a simple working vocabulary including expressions used in everyday English, a feeling for pronunciation and simple conversation, to acquaint the student with the literature and customs, and to read some of the simpler classics.

Very few if any of these students will ever go abroad. Let the student live his French or German here, the teachers say. Should he travel within ten years of his high school course he will have to learn over at first hand and get along as best he can.

The students should be given the simple cultural appreciation of language and people and leave the conversational and literary for the French scholar and the serious college student.

Latin, as taught today, has not only a cultural value but a practical one as well. For the boys or girls who are going into any professional field, Latin is almost indispensable. So many terms in law, medicine, pharmacy, and all the sciences come from Latin. As a foundation for the study of any of the romance languages, French, Spanish, or Italian—Latin is a great help.

Latin, however, is of practical value not only to those who are planning to specialize along professional lines, but to everyone who speaks the English language. There are many instances in which all of us, whether we have studied Latin or not use it directly or indirectly.

THE FEDERAL CUT

Does it pay to have a budget system and a talented man at the head of the government who cares less about his position than the quality of the service he is giving to the people?

The United States government is going to cut the amount of taxes to be collected next year at least $200,000,000.00. The cut comes because it does not need the money but back of that and the real cause of it all is the fact that the finances of the federal government have been conducted in the main by business as distinguished from political methods.

The Democrats, seeking to make a little political music for the next campaign, indicate that they will try to make the cut $300,000,000.00, claiming that it easily can be done and the public relieved of the burden. Instinctively, we believe, the country will support Secretary of the Treasury Mellon because his is the cautious and conservative plan. While the country might be able to get by with a cut of $300,000,000.00, what if it didn't? The national treasury must be run in the same way that every individual's treasury should be run, carefully, to the end that a surplus, which is so desirable, be maintained instead of possible deficit.

The administration measure in the senate proposes that this cut shall be spread over a number of different things, eliminating entirely the automobile tax of 3 per cent and the tax on theater admissions excepting where the tickets cost $3.00 or more, also cutting individual's taxes. Corporations receive a cut from 13 1/2 per cent to 12 1/2 per cent, bringing to mind the great taxes that have been placed upon them, taxes that those unfamiliar with the facts, forget when they are drinking in socialistic speeches with the claim that corporations are favorites of the government.

As a matter of fact in the state of Wisconsin and depending to some extent upon the assessed value of their real estate and personal property corporations are paying a heavy toll in taxes, some of them as high as 40 per cent of their net profits, none below 20 per cent.

But the people never should lose sight of the blessings to be gained when the finances of a government are in reality taken out of the helter-skelter methods of politics and put upon the truthful and dependable basis of facts. The condition of the federal treasury and the Wisconsin treasury are two shining examples of what can be done by good business principles rightly applied on the one hand, and the result on the other of just jollyng the people along to the next election.

INTERNATIONAL HIGHWAY

Or perhaps it is, more properly speaking, an inter-American highway that the nations of the world are asked here in 1930 to discuss. Such a Pan-American project would be of universal benefit: a highway connecting South America with North America giving tourists a stretch of 7,000 miles of roadway. Such a roadway is visualized by backers of this joint government and state enterprise who have taken the preliminary steps here toward making the project possible. The bill before congress, and which it is thought has a fair prospect of success, proposes a highway to start at some point in Canada, traverse the United States and continue through Mexico, Central America and South America.

There is both Pan-American sentiment in favor of such a highway and economic demand for it. Such a project was proposed many years ago by James G. Blaine in the form of a Pan-American railroad, but at the present time the world is thinking in terms of automobiles and motor-trucks, which have, in part at least, superseded railroad transportation, and the big international project now takes, quite naturally, the form of a highway for this newer form of transportation. Aviation has also made such progress as to influence the project. Not only will this highway be used for automobiles and motor-trucks, but it will serve those who in the future will travel and transport matter by air, and with this purpose in mind the proposed highway will be of such width that it will at any point and at any time afford landings for airplanes that may be compelled to descend for safety.

Such a highway would serve as a guide for air travel and it is not difficult to visualize an air traffic of vast proportions, as well as a vast motor traffic, should it be built.

MILITARY GRIEVANCES

In a lawsuit which has aroused ancient and feverish discussions throughout Canada, twelve farmers vindicated Sir Arthur Currie, wartime commander of the Canadian forces, on charges of slaughtering troops on Armistice Day at Mons for his own glory, and imposed $500 damages on the defendants in the case who were accused of the libel.

This sort of post-war discussion often ending in litigation and involving charges reflecting upon the good faith, ability or courage of leading officers, is nothing new. Wars breed not only hatred of nation against nation but oftentimes strong similar feelings between soldiers in the same army but occupying different ranks. The American forces were not without their troubles in this regard. National Guard officers often felt and charged that they were curiously removed to make way for regular army officers who wished the advancement attendant upon their removal. While leaders in the regular army, no doubt, did their best to offset such impression there seemed, here and there, ample evidence to support it. Nor has the country forgotten the treatment accorded General Leonard Wood, recognized as one of the ablest, if not the ablest and most experienced commanding officer in the American forces, yet relegated to the undesirable position of commanding an army cantonment in this country while the flames of battle were raging wildly abroad. It was charged then and freely that Wood was given an undesirable position because he was personally unsatisfactory to the military chiefs who were in the saddle at Washington. There has never seemed to be a fair or just explanation of the wrong done to this great man who devoted his life and services unsparringly to his country's welfare.

It was treatment of this character that drove a weaker man during the Revolution into the camp of the enemy as a traitor, Benedict Arnold, an American general with, to the time of his betrayal of his country, a glorious record of courageous service.

Following the Spanish war we had the unfortunate controversy between Schley and Sampson culminating in a board of investigation taking evidence and making findings, an unusual, hopeless and quite unnecessary proceeding.

A country that is not given over to militarism often experiences difficulty in finding its most competent men to command. How many generals did President Lincoln put in command of the Union forces attacking Richmond before he found Grant? You hardly have enough fingers to count them on. Yet, during all this period of experimentation Union lives were lost in tremendous numbers because of incompetent leadership. President Lincoln learned that the general who talked most and promised much never delivered. It was hard to get a word out of Grant, but he accomplished things.

The good soldier from Commander-in-Chief to "buck private in the rear rank" must be a good natured philosopher or he will be mad all the time. When active operations are going on during a war there is not time for the musing out of exact justice. The seasoned soldier swallows whatever wrongs may come his way and merrily sings, "You're in the army now."

Indicating the complete lack of value to rumors that wildly fly during and following military engagements, although General Currie was accused of a "needless, heedless, frightful loss of life in a useless, mad attack on Mons" on Armistice Day, the evidence produced at the trial showed that only one man in the entire Canadian corps was killed on that day and he was not killed at Mons.

The oldest restaurants in the world, all of them much frequented by tourists, are the Brautwurst, glocklein at Nuremberg, where sausage has been eaten for 525 years; the Mitre Hotel at Oxford, which has a history of 500 years; the Cafe de la Reine in Paris, which has been open for 200 years and the Ratskeller in Bremen, built in 1505.

Although London has a reputation for rain, a careful record shows that it has much less than many American cities. London's 25 inches compare favorably with Philadelphia's 41, St. Louis 40, Cleveland's 37, New York's 39 and Detroit's 35.

Florida possesses three ports with channel depth of 20 feet or more and seven ports with a depth of 24 feet or more.

The oldest tourist resort in the world is Spa in Belgium; it was first extolled by the Roman, Pliny the Elder, in the first century.

THIS DRY REFERENDUM WAS NOT SO DRY
Feb. 22, 1926, I said here: I'm going to run the risk of getting some mighty bad news. I'm going to ask for a referendum on this seaisickness thing. But thinking of this reminds me of another question I'd like to include in the referendum. That is the bed wetting habit.

I appealed to parents or guardians to whom I sent instructions or advice about the correction of the bed wetting habit to write in and tell me whether they had followed out the regimen I suggested and what effect it had.

The referendum is all over now, and I must admit it wasn't so very dry.

Before I report the tally it is fair to say that I had sent out to parents or guardians of children who wet the bed nearly 5,000 letters of instruction and advice; and I had sent out to prospective voyagers approximately 1,500 letters giving details of a method for the prevention of seaisickness. Once in a long while some one wrote in to tell me my "cure" was a huge success or a dismal failure. So I conceived the wild idea of holding a referendum.

It is human nature when you are well to feel no gratitude to the doctor who has been an angel when you were sick. It is contrary to the sense of privacy for a correspondent to write to thank me for advice that helped cure the correspondent's child of the bed wetting habit. And finally, it is just plumb carelessness that makes most of us neglect to return thanks and some of us offer thanks in advance—a confession that we do not expect to bother with thanks when thanks fall due.

The first effect of the referendum was a sudden demand for advice and instruction. I had offered, both for the prevention of seaisickness and for the correction of the bed wetting habit. Nearly 200 new and trusting candidates applied for the method of preventing seaisickness, and more than 900 parents or guardians still sought my advice about the bed wetting habit. This made me suspect that maybe most of the readers did not understand what I wanted. However, here is the damp result.

Bed wetting habit.—There were 66 votes. Forty-eight parents or guardians reported that they had followed my instruction with satisfactory results. Twelve reported that the children showed improvement but were not entirely free from the habit. Six reported that they had been disappointed, but four of these said they had not adhered strictly to the regimen I advised.

Seaisickness.—There were 17 votes. Eleven correspondents testified that my advice had surely saved them from the mal de mer the last trip across. Three including a medical colleague, testified that my advice had surely not saved them—in fact my medical brother brands my method as a "complete failure" in his case. Three were doubtful.

So there you are. Honestly I don't know whether I'm all wet or just damp.

One of the votes in the bed wetting referendum was an acknowledgment of thanks for advice I had given 12 years ago, and another was 11 years old.

Weighing the matter, I conclude that it would be indiscreet to hold a referendum on theeri question just yet.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

1. Please give me a list of foods containing calcium or lime. (2) Also a list of foods containing iodine, magnesium and manganese. I lack these three elements and want to know which foods to eat to get them. (E. W. B.)

Answer—If your daily ration includes not less than a pint of fresh milk, any kind of cheese you prefer, and green leafy vegetable or salad, preferably something you enjoy in the raw state, and maybe a dish of peas or beans, you'll get all the calcium (lime) you need. I do not believe it is possible for one to select a diet that does not provide sufficient magnesium, as practically all food, meat, vegetable, fish, fowl, egg, fruit, nut, contain it. We have no definite knowledge of the essential requirements of man, but even of the essential presence in the body. The best source of iodine is fresh sea food—and fish or shellfish the market provides in the fresh state. Some canned sea food or fish coming from the sea retains its natural iodine component, notably canned salmon. If such food is not available several times a week, you should use iodized salt in place of common salt in the home.

CHILD EATS DIRT

How can I correct my 2 1/2 year old boy's habit of eating dirt? He will eat plaster off the wall, earth out of flower pots or even ashes from ash trays if not watched. (Mrs. B. F. W.)

Answer—Patient watching, a moderate slap of the hand for every offence, and care to give the boy some raw vegetable to eat every day.

THAT WHITE HOUSE DRAFT

LIBRARY ADVENTURES

By Arnold Mulder

THREE HUNDRED YEARS OF BUNYAN

It is three hundred years ago this year that John Bunyan was born in the little hamlet of New Harwood, near Elstow, in England. His tercentenary will be observed all over the world next November. For Bunyan does not belong to English literature alone, he is international. There are probably thousands of simple people in other nations than England, people whose only library is the Bible and Bunyan, who assume that he is of their own race. I know from personal experience that that was the case with a good many people when I was a boy. It never dawned on me until I began to read for myself that Bunyan had been English.

But he is of course as definite a part of English literature as Shakespeare himself, or rather as definite as Isaac Walton. The comparison with Shakespeare is not a happy one. The plays came from a great intellect; the allegories came from a burning heart, just "The Complete Angler" came from a loving heart.

I heard a great teacher of English literature give a series of classroom lectures once upon Bunyan's place in English literature. The teacher hardly believed a word of Bunyan's theology. To him the allegorical figures—Pilgrim and Giantheart and all the others—were mere characters in fiction. He paid tribute to Bunyan as a great novelist and testified to the compelling power of his art.

That is what 300 years have done to "Pilgrim's Progress." To him the allegory was a fiction. There are of course millions of people all over the world who never give a thought to Bunyan's art as a novelist but who read him as religion. But there are a great many who consider him entirely negligible as a thinker but who continue to worship him as an artist.

So far as I knew Edgar Allan Poe is the only one who denied that Bunyan was either a thinker or an artist. Poe held that allegory was a vicious form of expression and he refused to agree that "Pilgrim's Progress" was great art. But in general the verdict of mankind is against him.

It is much easier to refute the claim that Bunyan was a thinker. Take away the imagery in which he has clothed his stories and there is not much left. "Pilgrim's Progress" is the best example because it is the most familiar. It says nothing new or profound or penetrating about human life. It reduces human life, the progress of a man through this vale of tears to a final almost precarious salvation in heaven to a fairy story. It is beautiful, it has great charm, it has held the attention and the affection of millions by the simplicity and strength of its diction. But it is the picture painted by a poet, not by a thinker. Its power has probably lain in that very fact for the past 300 years. Millions have loved it because it said familiar things in a novel way. It made a story of abstraction, gave color and sensuous life to theological ideas. All the world loves a good story and for many generations the very people who thundered against the sin of novel reading read this great novel with avidity.

The absence of the great thinker is still more apparent in "The Holy War." A great work of art, like "Pilgrim's Progress," but one that adds nothing to human thought. Reduced to its bones, what does it consist of? Merely the fact that man has five senses and that the outside world is continually assailing those senses with impressions. The ear and the eye and the nose and the tongue and the touch are five gates to the medieval city called "Mansoul," the devil is always trying to break down these gates and "Mansoul," besieged and at bay in his body is waging a terrible war to defend itself. The simple John Bunyan would have been in water over his head if even the simplest idea of the subconscious or anything like that had been suggested to him. He was a poet and novelist, not a thinker. Sometimes a poet and novelist is also a thinker, but this was not the case with Bunyan.

His strangest and in many ways his most significant book is perhaps least known. "Grace Abounding" is a very strange piece of work. It is a kind of autobiography of the "confession" type. The book betrays Bunyan as incredibly naïve and superstitious. The dignity of the King James Bible also the self-portrait of a man who is in it, as in all Bunyan's books, but was intellectually a child.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York — Not perhaps that it makes a great deal of difference, but buttons of the Bremen crew are being hawked in the subway and at Times Square. Which, somehow, reminds me that it must be getting pretty close to county fair time out in Lapeer county, Mich. And already a song about the flyers has come off Tin Pan Alley, under the name of my friend Walter O'Keefe, who more or less immortalized Henry Ford's farewell to the lizzie. . . . And the Bartenders' Union had their annual ball the other night and 800 were there. . . . And all of them employed. Somehow they didn't seem as sad as they might have about prohibition. It seems their salaries, insofar as New York is concerned, have gone up greatly, thanks to the speakeasy prosperity. To say nothing of the tips they now get for mixing a cocktail that's fairly fit to drink. . . . And a salesman came into the office the other day with a little case of samples. And we sampled his samples. And he assured us that if we had a barrel sent over and let it take Nature's own sweet course, in the course of a month or so we'd have some grand wine. Any kind, any flavor. . . . And variety forms me that the Hippodrome, which once was looked upon as the last word in theatrical allure, will soon dedicate itself entirely to movies. Oh, well, we're getting old!

It's really no longer necessary for poets to scrawl in garrets. Down in Greenwich Village, where most of yesterday's starving poets lived somehow to write last year's best selling fiction, they have learned the uptown habit of being subsidized or getting their meals off youngsters with money who came on from the movies, west and way points. The moment an art-struck maiden appears with a dowry from the home folks, an amazing number of muse-weavers appears with appetites for good food and very ordinary wine.

For some reason or other, the poets come are invariably impressed. To be allowed to sit at the feet of poets, or whatever they are, is sufficient unto itself. It's far more likely that the poor little rich kid will starve than that the poets will. For they are fast becoming past masters at the art of begging. There are now who collect the living the world owes them; or at least that they have convinced themselves it owes them.

In a less than modest Fourth street barracks there now lives a very youthful millionaire, who has at least one book of verses to his credit, and who has been a windfall to his fellows. Only a couple of weeks ago to young woman appeared out of New England and turned two venerable residence places into a little art theater and art gathering place, agreeing to underwrite and endorse only who has been a windfall to his fellows. And the Village is filled with such. But, thanks to the fact that the very air is charged with literary ambitions, it becomes easier for them to partake of ham and eggs.

Which reminds me that the Village poets held their final soiree of the year, in a basement coffee house the other night. The charge for the dinner was $1.25. Half the poets went on strike, refusing to attend and pay that impossible sum unless an advance sale of poems was guaranteed.

And there I heard a tale of a certain poetical lad who had been subsidized by a coffee millionaire. The magnate put up $1600 for the private printing of the youth's verses. And, when the story goes, he got for his money two lines of quite blank verse that went.

"Who feeds the poet Serves the nation well." To which, without any inspiration, I might reply with another composition.

Who grubstakes poets Serves the nation right!

this figure with words "good night" and the signature of the sender were placed at the bottom of the sheet by the operator. At that time piece work was the rule on all papers. The daily grist was usually set up, corrected, and in the forms by 10 o'clock, but the compositors were compelled to wait around at their expense until the foreman announced that "30" was in. So "30" became a by-word among printers, symbolizing the end.

DEAD PACKER'S KIN PAY UP HIS DEBTS; RUN INTO MILLIONS

Came from District Where It Was "Hateful" to Be Indebted

Chicago—(P)—In the code of the Sheldons, strict New Englanders, from which stock came the widow of J. Osgood Armour, packer, a debt was "hateful." It was a mark against the name until liquidated—dollar for dollar.

Because of that, and because "Mr. Armour would not want others to suffer in anything for which he was even indirectly responsible," Mrs. Armour and her daughter will pay more than $10,000,000 out of their personal fortunes to settle the debts of the packer.

The daughter, Mrs. John J. Mitchell, is Lolita, in childhood a cripple whose cure first attracted attention to Dr. Adolf Lorenz, the Austrian. Armour brought the surgeon to this country and the success of his treatment of the crippled child paved the way to fame in America.

Chief of Armour's obligations, when he died last summer in London, was the Sutter Basin project in California. The packer had envisioned the Sutter Basin dotted with numerous small farms inhabited by hundreds of contented families recruited from congested cities. It lies north of Sacramento, in the Feather river district. Post-war reconstruction stopped the reclamation project, shrunk the value of the land and left Armour and those who had invested with him with $9,000 acres that were worth millions less than had been put into them.

Speculations in sugar and investments in several activities reduced the Armour fortune, estimated in 1921 at $120,000,000, to only a fraction of that. When he died he owed Armour and Company $18,000,000. During one period of his losses Armour said he dropped a million dollars a day.

"My daughter and I feel very strongly about the responsibilities of debt, and the suffering that may devolve upon others when just debts are repudiated," remarked Mrs. Armour.

"There is not to be a single suspicion of a shadow on the name of my husband and my daughter's father. No sacrifice would be too great for that. But we do not feel it is a sacrifice. It is our privilege to do

Miss Lucille Meusel, singer of national reputation and a graduate of the Lawrence Conservatory of Music, exhibited her ability as a trap shooter Sunday at the Green Bay De Pere Gun Club shoot breaking 31 out of 50 clay targets. In 1919 she won the nation aviation trap shooting championship at Chicago and since that time has participated in several important events. Miss Meusel, a member of the Chicago Civic Opera company, is visiting her parents at Green Bay and last week gave a recital there.

the one thing that Mr. Armour would have wanted done." Her eyes flashed proudly as she uttered "privilege." After all the marketable securities there still will be needed $10,000,000 to liquidate the debts. This will come from the bank accounts of Mrs. Armour and her daughter. Already the packer's widow has bought in $6,000,000 in warrants outstanding against the Sutter Basin company, and turned them over to a new corporation.

Revised Laws

A special meeting of the city council will be called next Wednesday evening to pass on a number of revised ordinances, it was intimated by Mayor A. C. Rule Thursday morning after a conference with L. Hugo Keller, city reviser of ordinances. All ordinances except these which probably will bring considerable discussion will be acted upon at that time.

The revised traffic ordinance and the zoning law are two of the ordinances which will be postponed for the time being. In the case of the latter it has been suggested that Mr. Keller confer with Leonard Smith, Madison, city planner. If the local man threshes out several contemplated changes with Mr. Smith, the city planning commission can act upon other local problems, it was said.

The traffic ordinance is expected to bring forth considerable comment and, because of the lengthy discussions expected, probably will be the last adopted. Lower half bills for the revised ordinances have been ordered, and will be made up after the laws are printed.

CYNICS ARE THOSE WHO LOSE FAITH

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

THE teacher asked the class if anyone knew what a cynic was. A little Indian girl jumped up and answered promptly that it was something in which to wash dishes—“also do baby.”

Her answer was as good as any. What is a cynic, exactly? He will give a definition of himself that goes something like this: “I am a cynic because I think for myself and do not accept the views or practices of other people.”

His neighbors' definition would likely be: “A cynic is a person who believes in nobody. He tears down without building up. He criticizes but offers no remedy.”

Recently I had a letter from a man who writes himself upon being a cynic. He is no more a cynic than I am, but because he sees so many things to be set right and feels the futility of doing much single-handed, he has become disgruntled and a bit pessimistic.

We all do that more or less, but I have known him from boyhood and a finer man never lived. It amuses me to hear him call himself a cynic—and with a fair amount of pride at that. He remarks that it is the cynics who are making all the progress in the world.

It is too big a subject for this space, but at least there is room for me to give my definition: A cynic is one who has lost all faith in everybody and everything.

Never admit yourself a cynic. It is a terrible confession. It is better to try to have faith in people and what they do. Things may not suit you. They may appear raw and common and contrary to your esthetic sense of rightness. But the huge forces of what the mass of people are thinking and doing are the stuff that life is made of.

No really great man ever has been a cynic at heart.

Nursing Problems Of “Middle Class” Solved

BY JULIA BLANSHARD
NEA Service Writer

New York—Getting a trained nurse by the hour, instead of having to hire her for the whole 12-hour shift, is the new solution to the financial problem Mr. Average Man has when he is sick and needs nursing care.

The nurses themselves are advancing the new plan of hourly nursing, in small or large quantities, depending on the needs of the patients.

Rich folks, they say, always can go to hospitals and stay there until they are well, or can have private nurses day and night at home. Poor folks get the expert care of the city's visiting nurses. But Mr. Average Man is caught between the two and either has to stretch the budget painfully to get a nurse in or go without the care he needs.

FAVORED BY ORGANIZATION

“It is possible now in many cities to secure nurses for 1, 2, 6 or 12 hours, as the patient needs her,” Miss Janet M. Geister, Headquarters Director of the American Nurses' Association, explains. This organization, with its 70,000 nurses throughout the country is taking an active interest in the new project of hourly nursing.

“Private duty nursing when a nurse moves in and spends 12 hours waiting on the patient harks back to the 25 years ago when nursing was not the technical profession it is today. It belongs to an age when everyone lived in a house with spare rooms and when women with plenty of time and little scientific training were only too glad to move in and stay as long as needed or longer. Nowadays the small apartments and comparatively small incomes of great masses of so-called ‘middle class’ persons make resident nursing a prohibitive thing.”

“Chicago, San Francisco, Gary, New Haven, Detroit, and a half dozen other cities are trying out the hourly nursing most successfully. Charges vary from $1.50 to $2 an hour for the first hour and from 50 cents to $1 for every other hour, with three consecutive hours the maximum with any one person.”

“Mrs. Smith, just home from the hospital with her first baby, has the nurse an hour daily to bathe, feed, prepare his formula and make sure Mrs. Smith herself is getting along all right. Tommy, next door, who has broken his arm, has the nurse in to dress it. Others nearby have her services also. A dressing changed here, a bath for an aged, bed-ridden mother there; a massage for a convalescent man; temperature baths for the fever patient—these are the needs that an hourly nurse satisfies perfectly, and at little cost.”

“The new plan would benefit nurses as well as the 2,000,000 persons, who, according to statistics, are sick daily. In spite of the high cost of nursing to the patient, under the regular 12-hour system, it is estimated that the average income of the private-duty nurse is only $12.65. Four months of each year are estimated wasted in this profession which has the disadvantages of seasonal occupations.”

“Under the hourly nursing system,

Jean Doe drops in to dress Willie's arm.

one can phone the central hourly nursing organization and get a nurse whenever wanted. And the nurses connected with the plan would have full time employment. The organization responsible for the new system might be either a joint committee from the Visiting Nurse Association and the nurses in the District Association, as it is in Detroit, or some other combination of organizations. Visiting Nurse Associations, Central Districts and other official organizations all are experimenting along these hourly nursing lines.

“Each city would work out its own organization for this new departure is a community affair and will be developed as each city wants it.”

and “MOM” Their Letters

BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

Mom, dear:

Here's where you get the surprise of your life. I went, alone and unprotected, to the lion's den. And I came out all of a piece.

Now I'll tell you what those plans are—those I referred to in a previous letter. I knew when Michelle asked me to pose for him that it was purely a business proposition. Don't ask me how I knew. Even girls of your day must have known when they appeared to a man as a man. I knew I hadn't clicked with Michelle. He didn't seem to be interested in me as an addition to his love gallery.

There were others, I admit, at the party who took notice of me after the show in a warmly personal way, but Michelle was not one of them. He told me that he liked my figure and wanted to sketch me in poses of the dance. They're to be used in illustrating a book on the origin of modern dancing.

He's going to do a series. It will take some time as he can't work steadily on them. He has three portraits under way now and several more ordered. Some day I hope he will do one of me but his prices are stiff. I thought he might offer to do it for less if I posed for him but he insists upon paying me for my work.

And say, Mom, maybe you think it isn't hard. Gosh, I'm full of cranks and knoifs that I know will never come out. It may sound like the life of Riley standing up there on a dais and just holding still but it's torture after a while. I don't think I'll ever be able to do the Black Bottom again except in slow motion.

Michelle says these poses are unusually trying but I can think of easier ways to get money than by posing for art. Coaxing it out of a husband is one but I'd rather take the harder way and earn it. There's mental compensation. It will be a thrill to have a little money of my own again. Of course Alan and I get along pretty well on the arrangement we made in the beginning about the money I was to have but there are unexpected uses for a little cash that bob up now and then which make a prenuptial money agreement nothing but a scrap of paper.

If the series and my bones hold out I'll be able to start a savings account.

Dearest love,
MARYE.

“ARE we surprised. You bet your life. To think that you have come to life,” said Clowney, as he shook a tiny daisy's little flowers could run. When Clowney cried, “Now I'll be it,” the game was tried again.

When everyone grew all tired out, a butterfly jumped up to shout, “Oh, Tinymites, please help us. You can do it, if you'll try. We're only butterflies, you see, but we are sad as we can be. They say we're very pretty, but of butter we are shy.”

Woe Clowney looked at them awhile and then his face broke in a smile. “Say, if it's better that you need, there's no cause for alarm. Just follow up o'er the hill and you shall shortly have your fill. I know where we can get some if we come upon a farm.”

Special to Post-Crescent

They stated also that they found spears, a gasoline fishing jack, gill nets, nearly two bushel of snags, hooks and sinkers and a considerable quantity of canned sturgeon, all of which were confiscated. One of the sturgeon was found in the basement of the house. The material used was pork scraps.

Demonstrates Way How Pioneers Make Own Soap

BY W. F. WINSEY

New London—Making soap on the farm, a practice once imperative and old as the farms themselves but now nearly obsolete, was revived and illustrated by Mrs. William Prochnow, 3, in her farm yard on Friday. Soap-making on the farm in the early days of Wisconsin was an absolute necessity as soap in the market was very expensive or could not be had at all in suitable form for washing and scrubbing. The equipment for soap making on farms consisted of two barrels, one to hold sugar maple ashes and the other to hold the soap, a large farm kettle swung on pole supported by a post crocheted at the top driven in the ground and a quantity of firewood. The material used was pork scraps.

CLINTONVILLE LIONS HEAR TALK BY FORMER COUNTY SCHOOL HEAD

W. E. Smith, Appleton, Praises Waupaca-co's Contributions to World

Clintonville—A meeting was held by the Lions club on Wednesday at the Ward hotel, where covers were laid for 35, several out of town guests being present.

Frank Younger, president of the Appleton Lions club, was present and extended an invitation to the state convention of Lions clubs which will meet at Appleton the first week in June.

He was followed by W. E. Smith of Appleton who is general chairman for convention, who outlined briefly plans and preparatory activities now in progress under committee direction.

R. M. Connelly, Appleton, furnished several members, accompanied on the piano by Miss Gladys Schoenick.

W. E. Smith of Appleton was the principal speaker for the day. He noted the fact that it was 20 years ago that he resigned as county superintendent of schools of Waupaca-co. He commended upon the activities of Lionism in Waupaca-co where there are now four clubs.

He recounted the splendid achievement of the Appleton Lions club in backing the movement which has resulted in organizing bands in the junior high schools of that city and introducing a course in music instruction in each grade.

He pointed to the outstanding contribution made to the world by citizens of Waupaca-co, among them John Erickson who built up such a famous herd of Holstein cattle that they sold for $97,000, representatives from 20 different countries coming to his sale at that time.

Zachow and Beardsley, who by their Four Wheel Drive invention, started the world coming to the doors of Clintonville in ever increasing numbers; P. H. Kasper, the worlds greatest cheesemaker; W. E. Switzer, a product of Clintonville and former county superintendent of Waupaca-co schools, who has endeavored to spread notice by establishing the first school forest in Wisconsin at Crandon, following up with one at Laona, and another at Wabeno.

He said Wisconsin owed a debt of gratitude to Clintonville for having the foresight and enterprise to purchase and preserve at the public library, the Eben E. Rexford collection consisting of all of his original manuscripts, from his school day verses to authoritative horticultural productions, his "Silver Threads Among the Gold," and other contributions to music.

Six members of the Weyauwega club were present. E. H. Jones, president of the latter club and George Van Huukel spoke briefly, inviting the Clintonville club to Weyauwega for their charter night, on May 14.

Others from Weyauwega were A. R. Wiessman, H. J. Becker, C. A. Miller and Henry Gloke.

The next meeting of this club will be held at the club house at Clover Leaf lakes, which will be the first to be held there this season.

Funeral services for Arnold Schultz who died at Marion after an attack of pneumonia, were held from his home at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. A. A. Bennett of this city. Services at the cemetery were conducted by Masonic order of Clintonville of which he was a member.

Mr. Schultz was born at Elgin, Minn., Aug. 11, 1893, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Schultz. He came to Marion 14 years ago and on April 10, 1918, he was married to Miss Lucille Hollar of that place. Survivors are his wife and two children, Mildred and William, his parents near Rochester, Minn., one brother, Homer, of Fort Worth, Texas, and one sister, Mrs. Leona DeWitz, of Hustisford. ## Methodists Get Ready To Air Bitter Church Fight

Kansas City—One of Europe's bitterest church wars, which has involved the imprisonment of a bishop, the expulsion of a pastor and nearly six years of heated argument and litigation, will come to a head in Kansas City when the quadrennial conference of the Methodist Episcopal church meets here early in May.

The bishop is Bishop Anton Bast of Denmark. The pastor is the Rev. John P. Ingerslev, former pastor of the Jerusalem church of Copenhagen. Their cases, and the feud between them, will be given final review at the quadrennial conference.

Bishop Bast is one of the most prominent churchmen in Europe. Rev. Ingerslev, a Dane by birth, has lived for years in America and had won fame by conducting a church mission in Baltimore. In 1920 Bishop Bast summoned him to Denmark to engage in similar work at Jerusalem church.

He went well until 1922, when a group of laymen in Rev. Ingerslev's church protested over alleged irregularities in the way Bishop Bast had been handling funds contributed for charity.

Rev. Ingerslev backed these charges, and was promptly elected by Bishop Bast's council of district superintendents. Charges and counter charges were made, and in 1924 Rev. Ingerslev prepared to come to Boston to lay the case before the Methodist conference.

Shortly before the conference, however, Bishop Bast suspended him from his church, thus rendering him ineligible to attend the conference. The suspended pastor came anyway, as a layman, but could accomplish nothing. He did, however, meet an old friend, Dr. Hans Jensen of Kansas City, a wealthy layman of Danish birth, who promised him his support.

Back to Denmark went Rev. Ingerslev, to file with the Danish government formal charges against the bishop. A state investigation was begun.

Deprived of his church, Rev. Ingerslev suffered poverty. His wife died, and for months he and his children had to live on $55 a month, their diet being chiefly coarse bread and water. Friends wrote to Dr. Jensen, in America, and he and others began contributing to the ousted minister's support.

Then Bishop Bast was indicted by the Danish government. He was accused of conducting a printing firm, ostensibly as a mission enterprise but really as a private concern, and appropriating $13,000 from a church fund for relief work, and of using other moneys belonging to the church.

The bishop was convicted on one count and imprisoned for three months. He continued to hold a strong following among church members, however, and when he left prison received hundreds of letters of support. He was forbidden by the government to preach, and offered to resign his position as bishop; but church authorities ordered that the whole affair be fought out at the next conference.

It probably will be a bitter fight. The bishop is coming, and so is the Rev. Ingerslev, bringing his daughter, Alma, who has stood by him throughout the fight. Otto Fabricius, leading Danish attorney, is coming to present the pastor's side, and with him is coming Mrs. Fabricius, famous Danish opera singer, to help.

MURDER'S FRIEND AS HOME BREAKER

Wealthy Broker Accuses Associate After Surrender to Police

Kansas City—(P)—A wealthy young real estate broker, who told police he believed his home had been broken up by a middle aged business associate, was held without charge here Friday while his erstwhile friend lay near death from three bullet wounds.

Hurrying through the crowded station here Thursday Harry J. Wheeler, made his way to the private office of C. A. Miller, district Pullman Co. superintendent, and without warning fired three times at the Pullman official. All the bullets struck Miller, one entering the abdomen.

As Miller fell across a desk, Wheeler hurriedly left the office. He submitted to arrest with the remark he was on his way to the police station anyway.

"He broke up my home," Wheeler told Chief of Detectives L. A. Toyne. "I tried to kill him. He caused me plenty of worry and I'm glad I did it."

Several religious pamphlets were found in Wheeler's pockets. A pass-calling "The Superiority of the Individual," was understood.

The Wheeler and Miller had been friends for ten years.

STAGE And SCREEN

"THE LAST COMMAND"

AT FISCHER'S MONDAY

The story opens with Jannings in Hollywood as a movie extra; bearded, decrepit, poor, epileptic and most of all discouraged. He has sought every nook and corner of the world in quest of the girl he loves but to no avail.

A call goes out for extras to work in a picture about to be made, built around the Russian Revolution. He responds and is selected to play the role of a general. While in the dressing room with other extras he gazes upon a medal. It is the only one he has left of a great man he once possessed. As he gazes the picture fades and we see:

Jannings as a Russian General. All high, imperious. A stern and mighty warrior. A GENERAL.

The General arrives at a small village near the front lines to inspect his troops. This done, he prepares to leave. A shriek from a window is heard. A woman is seen struggling with officers. His officers. The General goes to her rescue. His men are humiliated. The girl is beautiful. She has a comrade, a Red. The General hates him for not protecting her. He strikes him. Arrests him.

The girl, a revolutionist, goes to the General's apartment with the avowed intent to kill him. The General knows this but is unable to restrain himself from loving her. The girl, too, fails to carry out her plan because she falls victim to his wondrous personality. She returns his love.

Revolution breaks. The girl helps the General to escape from Russia. Then she is killed in a railroad wreck. Then General does not know. Stripped of glory, beaten by poverty he seeks the girl all over the world. Years pass.

In Hollywood they meet, the Red and the General. The Red a director, the General an extra. The Red tells the General the girl is dead. Then casts him as a Russian General. A grim ironic jest!

An assistant director calls the General from his meditation. Once again the General is seen at the head of his troops. A bugle calls. He charges across the movie battlefield waving the banner of his old country. He screams in victory. Then collapses.

He rises. Dies to win the reluctant admiration from the Red.

"LADY BE GOOD"

"Lady Be Good" lives up to the exhortation in its title.

It is good—in fact it is better than any comedy that has been screened here in many months. It opens a 3 day engagement at the Elite Theatre today, First National's film version of the musical comedy success of the same name will bring constant ripples of laughter and many new fans for Dorothy Mackall and Jack Mulhall, who share co-featured honors in the production.

Mulhall plays the role of "Mysterio," a magician on a second-rate vaudeville circuit and Miss Mackall is his winsome assistant who helps him produce rabbits from hats and make plum puddings disappear.

Almost the entire picture takes place backstage in the vaudeville theatre of the circuit, with the other players providing the supporting characters in the story.

A whimsical story of the adventures and disappointments of "Mysterio" and his comely assistant runs through the picture, with comedy bits and opportune gag lines liberally interspersed. James Finlayson as the human target for the expert pistol shot provides many uproarious moments as does Dot Farley as his wife, who shoots apples off his head for the amusement of spectators.

John Miljan as the "heavy" of the picture and Nina Martin as his jealous wife contribute excellent performances as do Yola d'Avril, Eddie Clay-

How To Play Bridge

By Milton C. Work

CONTRACT BRIDGE

Minor Take-out of Original No

Trumps

With a Minor Contract take-out at a love score is very different from the Bridge take-out. Just as in Bridge a score makes the Minor take-out the same as the Major take-out at love, so in Contract at a love score we have a new proposition. Rescues being unknown, it is advisable to bid a five-card Minor headed by Ace-King, Ace-Queen-Jack, or possibly even Ace-Queen. With King-Queen it is doubtful and probably inadvisable. The bid of two of a Minor over a partner's one No Trump announces no side help for the No Trump but at least four cards of the Minor headed by Ace-King, Ace-Queen, or at least five cards of the Minor with two of the three top honors. With side help for the No Trump, the bid generally should be two No Trumps, not two of the Minor. (With a score, bid the Minor even with side help.) With Ace-King-Queen in the Minor and no other help, bid two of the Minor even from a love score, but not with weaker four-card holdings. To illustrate:

VALLEY TRACK MEN IN FIRST CONTEST

Fans Get Initial Look at All Conference Teams Here Saturday

Fox river valley track enthusiasts will be able to get their first real line on the strength of the track and field teams of the eight Valley conference high schools here Saturday afternoon when the second annual conference relay carnival is held at Whitfield field. Practically every one of the stronger schools, East and West Green Bay, Manitowoc and Appleton, have full teams entered in the special events beside the best of their sprinters and distance men in the relays, so that fans can have some basis of comparison for the annual Valley title meet at Manitowoc on May 26.

Five Valley champions will be entered in the special events, according to the dope and beside these there will be four interesting relays, a half mile for 220 men, a mile for the quarter milers, a two mile for the distance men and medley event, the first time this has been tried in the Valley. The champion are Johnston, Appleton, in the broad jump, shotput and 100-yard dash; Neller of Appleton in the pole vault in case that event is held; Peterson, Marinette, high jump; Gallenberger, West, high hurdles; Herber West, discus.

Gallenberger will meet two ancient rivals in his event, one of whom, Towseley of Manitowoc, always gives him plenty of trouble. The other is Jensen of East. In the high jump Peterson must down Schreiber of Manitowoc who made a great record in two meets to date this year, winning both. He went 5-8 at the Green Bay indoor events. Herber may receive a battle in the discus from Kruse of Appleton if the latter is in form.

TOMMY LUTHER PROVES SENSATION AS JOCKEY

Two years ago, Mickey Keefe, a well known turfman, went to Milwaukee, a little burg on the Illinois River, to get some clams for a party.

"Go down to Luther's they always get clams," was told.

The fifteen-year-old slip of a kid who filled that order didn't look like a clam digger and Keefe asked him what he was doing in that trade.

"I like horses better but I have to work with my father," he said.

Keefe liked the hands of the Luther kid, was taken with his natural build for riding and induced old Pop Luther to let the youngster go to the Aurora track for a trial.

Stuart Polk, who has developed some of the greatest jockeys in the game, started little Tommy exercising. He liked his stuff and took him to Reno, the Canadian tracks, Chicago and Lathrop.

Last spring he went to Tijuana as a 99-pound apprentice and became a sensation. He had 461 mounts, 90 winners, 56 seconds and 62 thirds, making a track record.

He rode Crystal Pennant to victory in the $110,000 Cofroth and was given a present of $13,000 by the owner.

Little Tommy is going to ride on the big eastern and middle-western tracks this summer and his agent is finding the demand for his services impossible to fill.

Kruetz to Coach at Penn
Al Kruetz, former star fullback, has been signed as an assistant football coach at the University of Pennsylvania.

Greatly Improved as Batter
Hitting the ball harder and truer than he ever has before, George Grantham, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, is said to be one of the most improved hitters in the majors this year.

Former Star Now Umpire
George Tyler, who starred as a pitcher with the Boston Braves in 1914, is now an umpire in the New England League.

Goes for Lacrosse Again
After a lapse of 30 years, lacrosse was made a major varsity sport by the City College of New York late in April.

MAKE PAPER FROM NEW ZEALAND WOOD

Wisconsin Rapids Manufacturer Conducts Tests for Far Away Government

Wisconsin Rapids—(P)—A local paper mill and experts from the U. S. Forest Products Laboratories, Madison are experimenting in the manufacture of newsprint paper from "tawu" wood from New Zealand, submitted for tests by the New Zealand government.

"Tawu" wood, which grows plentifully in New Zealand and is not used for any commercial purpose, is a hard wood somewhat resembling maple, and it is hoped that mills may be established in that country to make use of "tawu" for paper making. New Zealand uses about 100 tons of newsprint daily, which is shipped in from Canada.

According to Lyman Beman of the paper company, a very good grade of paper was turned out in the experiment. Thirty-five cords of wood was shipped to Ladysmith from the antipodes and after being made into pulp wood was sent to the local mill. Ten tons of the paper was made and shipped to New Zealand, while several rolls were sent to Madison for inspection by experts at the Forest Products Laboratories, where initial experiments were carried on. A Madison paper will print one issue on the "tawu" wood product.

A Mr. Ettrich of New Zealand has been in the United States for the past year in the interests of the proposed paper mill and was here when the successful experiment was conducted. Twice before attempts were made to use "tawu" wood for paper, once at Ladysmith and once here, but each time the work resulted in failure. A change in the machinery at the Wisconsin Rapids mill was made in order to finally achieve the goal.

It is the plan of the New Zealand government to build a mill at Auckland to make 100 tons of newsprint a day, and later on to make additions to the plant so that other grades of paper may be manufactured.

Germany's total borrowing last year was 1,500,000 marks.

Automobile stage services in Madagascar now cover 625 miles.

Kewaunee—Since the first of the year, R. H. Lathrop, county agent, has been planning and managing farmers' institutes in Kewaunee county, fruit tree pruning demonstrations, seed treating demonstrations, seed testing experiments, chicken housing and poultry sanitation meetings, soil testing programs, milk poster and milk-drinking campaigns. He has induced 20 farmers to set aside plots for testing commercial fertilizer and others to use a total of 15 car loads of commercial fertilizer and quantities of agricultural lime stone, ground locally. He has organized 15 4-H clubs, encouraged the building of 50 chicken houses and 3 straw loft hen houses which makes a total of 12 for the county.

Mr. Lathrop held one three-day farmers' institute, a two-day institute, and 17 one-day institutes, with a total attendance of 1,837 people. He held 4 fruit tree pruning demonstrations about the county, each one of which was well attended. He invented a machine for the treatment of seed grain that has a capacity of 500 bushels a day and has been using the machine at various centers in the treatment of seed.

With the aid of the teachers and the pupils of the rural schools, Mr. Lathrop has tested the germination of 2,000 samples of grain and 400 samples of soil this spring. His milk poster contest and milk campaign in which he will reach every pupil, teacher and home in Kewaunee-co, is now on and both are being worked through the city and rural schools. Those who are assisting him in the contest and campaign are Mrs. Nellie Kozio Jones and Miss Gladys Sillman, both of the college of agriculture, the county superintendent of schools and the teachers of rural and city schools.

RIOT OF COLOR ANNOUNCES BIG CHERRY CROP

Sturgeon Bay—(P)—Fragrant pink and white cherry blossoms soon will spread their colors in Door-co. They presage another crop of the fruit whose growing is the county's specialty.

And the blossoms this year will also presage a normal or better crop, in the opinion of Herman Ulsperger, secretary of the Door County Fruit Growers' association. Estimating on the basis of a normal crop, 10,000,000 cans and 10,000 fifty-gallon barrels of cherries should be packed.

Last winter was more favorable to a cherry crop than was the previous winter and a late spring also added to the prospects for a good crop, Mr. Ulsperger says. The trees this year are expected to blossom about June 1, a week later than last year.

More than the usual acreage of cherry trees was planted in Door-co the last two springs. Sixty-three thousand trees were planted this spring it is estimated.

Cherry growers are through pruning their trees and are now cultivating their orchards. E. E. Wilson, cherry growing expert, is stationed in the Door-co territory and is devoting all his time to the study of cherry pests and diseases and sending out information about spraying and the most successful methods of producing the fruit.

In addition to cherries, Door-co has 2,000 acres planted with apple trees. This acreage produced 140,000 bushels of apples in 1927. A normal crop is expected this year.

GIVE NEW RULING ON DUAL OFFICE PROBLEM

Madison—(P)—Although the office of mayor of a city and treasurer of a school district may appear incompatible, there is no necessity for a person holding both to vacate one, due to the impending change in selection of school officials after July, the attorney general has informed John Callahan, superintendent of public instruction.

In view of the numerous requests that have come to the legal department for interpretations of the "incompatible" rule, it enunciated the following general principle: the question to be considered in most cases is whether the discharge of duties of one office will come in conflict with the duties of another. In some cases, the statutes expressly provide that the same person cannot hold two offices.

Ringling Determined To Stay In Circus Business

New York—The last of the seven Ringling boys—circus men all—has been intimately identified with the "big top" for some two score years now. But he still gets a kick out of every Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey performance that he sees. And he sees many.

The last of the seven Ringlings is John, a man giant of stature, kindly of eye and personally acquainted with almost every American and European celebrity of modern times.

Ringling might have retired years ago on the money the circus has made for him. But year after year, the spring opening of the "greatest show on earth" at Madison Square Garden, New York, finds him personally in charge.

"I like to work and then there's sentiment in it," Ringling said. "I like to see it personally that the circus is better this year than last. We owe that to the people out over the country who patronize us each year—the youngsters and the grown-ups both."

"By the way have you seen our sea elephant?"

Sometimes it's a clown, sometimes an acrobat, that Ringling fancies the most as a new circus acquisition. This year it's the sea elephant, a weird, hulking creature from the Arctic. "The Ringling people captured it for us," he explained. "We had been after one for more than ten years."

There isn't a more remarkable institution in the country than the show which the last of the Ringlings owns and there are few more romantic stories than the story of its growth. Baraboo, Wisconsin, was its birthplace. The seven Ringling boys—John, Charlie, Al, Alf, T. Otto, Henry and Gus—were the sons of a harness maker. Their earlier ancestors had been show people in Europe.

The brothers gave backyard shows in Baraboo. About 1882 they started in those days, but the Ringlings bought the best horses to be had and missed few engagements.

Charlie was responsible for the first Ringling menagerie.

In six years they were able to buy railroad cars. With Charlie as general manager, the show prospered. Year by year they presented more and better acts under bigger and bigger tents.

In 1896 the Ringlings felt big enough to do competitive battle with the Barnum & Bailey circus. St. Louis was the scene of the first conflict. The Ringlings won. Eventually they bought the Barnum & Bailey caravan and became the undisputed circus kings of the world. In 1913 the two shows were combined.

Death removed one of the Ringling boys after another from the circus business, so that now only John is left. He expects to stick to it—despite his wealth and a multiplicity of other interests—until he too is removed.

Every president that Ringling can remember has been a circus-goer. Henry Ford is one.

Thomas A. Edison is one—or was

MOTORCOPS SAY WHEN DRIVING IS 'RECKLESS'

Autoists arrested by county motor-cyclists officers during the next season will be charged either with speeding or reckless driving, depending on the facts in the case, according to District Attorney John A. Lonsdorf. Mr. Lonsdorf said the ruling of the attorney general, who holds the state legislature failed to set a maximum speed limit when it changed the law some months ago, will make little difference in the number of arrests here.

The state law now holds that a motorist is speeding if he is traveling so fast as to endanger other traffic, according to Mr. Lonsdorf, and motor-cyclists officers will be instructed to make arrests on this basis.

until the time came for him scrupulously to conserve his physical strength.

Ringling, incidentally, regards Edison as perhaps the greatest man of all time.

"Every time I look at an electric light, I marvel at what he has done for the world," Ringling said.

GIRL ALONE

ANNE AUSTIN

THIS HAS HAPPENED
SALLY FORD, 16, is "farmer out" to CLEM CARSON for the summer and prepares to leave the state orphanage which has been her home since she was four. Sally dislikes the farmer and recalls stories of drudgery and fatigue-wracked bodies which the girls have told after a summer at the Carson farm.

Before she leaves she begs MISS POND, sentimental office helper, to tell her what she knows about her mother. She is disappointed to learn that the woman calling herself her mother left her at the orphanage when she was four and never returned to see if her child lived or died. As she leaves the children who love her dearly rush to the fence and cry for her to tell them goodbye. She runs back to the blue wire enclosure and kiss the smallest ones, then with tears in her eyes, turns and joins Clem at the car.

As they drive away, he leans near her with a chuckle and says: "You're quite a kissing-bug, ain't you? How about a little kiss for your new boss?"

NOW, GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IV

Sally had shrunk as far away from Clem Carson as the seat of the "five-er" permitted, phrases from Mrs. Stone's embarrassed, vague, terrified warnings boiling and churning in her mind: "Keep your body pure"—"mustn't let men take any liberties with you"—"you're a big girl now, things you ought to know"—"if you're led astray, it will be due to evils in your own nature!"

She suddenly loathed herself, her budding, curving young body that she had taken such innocent delight in as she bathed for her journey. She wanted to shrink and shrink and shrink, until she was a little girl again, too young to know "the facts of life," as Mrs. Stone, blushing and embarrassed, had called the half-truths she had told Sally. She wanted to climb over the door of the car, drop into the hot dust of the road, and run like a dog-chased rabbit back into the safety of the "Home."

There were no men there—no queer, different male beings who would want to "take liberties!"

"My land! Scared of me?" Clem Carson chuckled. "You poor little chicken! Don't mind me, Sally. I don't mean no harm, teasing you for a kiss. Land alive! I got a girl of my own, ain't I? Darned proud of her, too, and I'd out the heart outa any man that tried to take advantage of her. Ain't got no call to be scared of me, Sally."

She smiled waveringly, shyness making her lips stiff, but she relaxed a little, though she kept as far away from the man as ever. In spite of her dread of the future and her bitter disappointment over Miss Pond's disclosures as to her mother, she was finding the trip to the farm an adventure. In the 12 years of her life in the State Orphan's Asylum, she had never before left the orphanage unaccompanied by droves of other sheep-like, timid little girls, and unchaperoned by sharp-voiced, eagle-eyed matrons.

She felt queer, detached, incomplete, like an arm or a leg disengaged from a giant body; she even had the panicky feeling that, like such a dismembered limb, she would wither and die away from that big body of which she had been a part so long. But it was moment to bump swiftly along the hot, dusty white road, fringed with odoriferous, flowering weeds. Houses became less and less frequent; fewer children ran barefoot along the road, scurrying out of the path of the automobile. Occasionally a woman, with a baby sprawling on her hip, appeared in the doorway of a roadside shack and shaded her eyes with her hand as she gazed at the car.

As the miles sped away Carson seemed to feel the need of impressing upon the fact that her summer was not to be one of unalloyed pleasure. He sketched the life of the farm, her own work upon it, as if to prepare her for the worst.

"My wife's got the reputation of being a hard woman," he told her confidentially. "But she's a good woman, good clean through. She works her own fingers to the bone, and she can't abide a lazy, trifling girl around the place. You work hard, Sally, and speak nice and respectful-like, and you two'll get on, I warrant."

"Yes, sir," Sally stammered.

"Well, Sally," he told her at last, "here's your new home. This lane leads past the orchards—I got 10 acres in fruit trees, all of 'em bearing—and the gardens, then right up to the house. Pretty fine place, if I do say so myself. I got 230 acres in all, quite a sizeable farm for the middle west. Don't them orchards look pretty?"

Sally came out of her frightened reverie, forced her eyes to focus on the beautiful picture spread out on a giant canvas before her. Then she gave an involuntary exclamation of pleasure. Row after row of fruit trees, evenly spaced and trimmed to perfection, stretched before her on the right. The child in her wanted to spring from the seat of the car, run ecstatically from tree to tree, to snatch sun-ripened fruit.

"You have a good fruit crop," she said primly.

"That's the house," the farmer pointed to the left. "Six rooms and a parlor. My daughter, Pearl, doped the life out of me until I lost electric lights and a fancy bathtub. She ever made me get a radio, but it comes in right handy in the evening, specially in winter. My daughter, Pearl, can think of more ways for me to spend money than I can to earn it," he added with a chuckle, so that Sally knew he was proud of Pearl, proud of her urban tastes.

The car swept up to the front of the house; Clem Carson's hand on the horn summoned his women folks.

The house, which seemed small to Sally, accustomed to the big buildings of the orphanage, was further dwarfed by the huge red barns that towered at the rear. The house itself was white, not so recently painted as the lordly barns, but it was pleasant and homelike, the sort of house which Sally's chums at the orphanage had pictured as an ideal home, when they had let their imaginations run away with them.

Sally herself, born with a different picture of home in her mind, had romanced about a house which would have made this one look like servants' quarters, but now that it was before her she felt a thrill of pleasure. At least it was a home, not an institution.

A woman, big, heavy-bosomed, sternly corrected beneath her snugly fitting, starched blue chambray house dress, appeared upon the front porch and stood shading her eyes against the western sun, which revealed the thinness of her iron-gray hair and the deep wrinkles in her tanned face.

"Why didn't you drive around to the back?" she called harshly. "This young'un ain't company, to be trappin' her here through my front room. Did you bring them rubber rings for my fruit jars?"

"You betcha!" Clem Carson refused to be daunted in Sally's presence. "How's Pearl, Ma? Cold any better? I brought her some salve for her throat and some candy."

"She's all right," Mrs. Carson shouted, as if the car were a hundred yards away. "And why you want to be throwin' your money away on patent medicine salves is more'n I can see. I can make a better salve any day outa kerosene and lard and turpentine. Reckon you didn't get any car-mels for me? Pearl's all you think of."

"Got you a half a pound of car-mels," Carson shouted laughing. "I'll drive the new girl around back."

"Ma's got a sharp tongue, but she don't mean no harm," Carson chuckled, as he swung the car around the house.

When it shivered to a stop between the barns and the house, the farmer lifted out a few bundles which had crowded Sally's feet, then threw up the cover of the hatch in the rear of the car, revealing more bundles. Carson was loading her arms with parcels when he saw a miracle wrought on her pale, timid face.

"Lord! You look pretty enough to eat!" Clem Carson ejaculated, but he saw that she was not even aware that he was speaking to her.

In one of the few books allowed for Sunday reading in the orphanage—a beautiful, thick book with color-plate illustrations, its name, "Stories from the Bible," lettered in glittering gold on a back of heavenly blue—Sally had found and secretly worshipped the portrait of her ideal hero. It was a vividly colored picture of David, forever fixed in strong, beautiful grace, as he was about to hurl the stone from his sling-shot to slay the giant, Goliath. She had dreamed away many hours of her adolescence and early young girlhood, the big book open on her knee at the portrait of the Biblical hero, and it had not seemed like sacrilege, to adopt that sun-drenched, strong-limbed, but slender boy as the personification of her hopes for romance.

And now he was striding toward her—the very David of "Stories from the Bible." True, the sheepskin garment of the picture was exchanged for a blue shirt, open at the throat, and for a pair of cheap, earth-soiled "jeans" trousers; but the boyman was the same, the same! As he strode lightly, with the ease of an athlete or the light-footedness of a god, the sun flamed in his curling, golden-brown hair. He was tall, but not so tall as Clem Carson, and there were power and ease and youth in every motion of his beautiful body.

"Did you get the plow-share sharp-ened, Mr. Carson? I've been waiting for it, but in the meantime I've been tinkering with that little hand elder press. We ought to do a good business with it if we set up a cider stand on the road, at the foot of the lane."

Joy deepened the sapphire of Sally's eyes, quivered along the curves of her soft little mouth. For his voice was as she had dreamed it would be—vibrant, clear, strong, with a thrill of music in it.

"Sure I got it sharpened, Dave," Carson answered curtly. "You oughta get in another good hour with the cultivator before dark. You run along in the back door there, Sally. Mrs. Carson will be needing you to help her with supper."

The change in Carson's voice startled her, made her wince. Why was he angry with her—and with David, whose gold-flecked hazel eyes were smiling at her, shyly, as if he were a little ashamed of Carson for not having introduced them? But, oh, his name was David! David! It had to be David. (To Be Continued)

Carson's daughter, Pearl, is not so friendly, as Sally learns in the next chapter.

MINNESOTA MAN GETS FIRST FISHING PERMIT

A. F. Shira, Winona, Minn., Thursday purchased the first non-resident fishing license granted in Outagamie county this year. Last year the first non-resident license was issued on May 17, according to John E. Hantschel, county clerk. Non-resident licenses cost $3 and purchasers receive buttons to show they have secured licenses. Mr. Hantschel Wednesday received a supply of licenses from the state conservation department.

Makes Your Home brighter and your Work lighter.

FAIR warning. The swarm of cars brought out by first pleasant days of spring foretell what the summer jam will be.

Remember this. If quick starting is important in winter, then quick get-away, instant response in emergency, sharp pounding on a parking spot — these will be summer's definite demand on your gas — as it was never demanded before!

Depend on the gasoline of quick-starting fame to be—for the same reasons — the gas of assured quick get-away.

Can I really buy a Packard Six at as low a price as that ?

THAT is a common query when motorists "ask the man who owns one."

For many people — knowing Packard's outstanding reputation in the fine car field — have over-priced the Packard Six in their own minds.

Yet the Packard Six price range is but $2275 to $2785 at the factory — fully a third less than common belief.

If you have thought the Packard Six beyond your reach, let us figure with you.

Let us tell you what your present car is worth — if it is of average value it will make or exceed the down payment. Then your largest cash outlay will be the amount of a single monthly payment.

We can show you, too, that it costs no more to buy a Packard Six and drive it four or five years than to purchase and trade in $1500 cars every two years or so.

Why not enjoy the luxury of a distinguished Packard Six — as long as it costs no more? Twelve beautiful models to choose from.

DIVIDED OPINION ON REMOVING CAR LINES

Two petitions filed this week with the city clerk at Oshkosh indicate that citizens of that city are divided in the proposal of the Wisconsin Power and Light company to substitute busses for street cars in the city of Oshkosh. The longer of the two petitions, containing about 200 signatures, opposed the proposal, while the other petition, with 69 signatures, favored the substitution. Several other petitions, filed previously, also show that there are many citizens in favor of the abandonment as well as a large group which opposes the move. It is said that business men on Main-st favor the removal of the street cars while residents on the outskirts of the city are opposed to the move.

ISSUE PERMITS FOR MARKETING STOCK

Several Wisconsin Firms Given Right to Raise Money for Extensions

Madison—(AP)—The state railroad commission authorizes the Wisconsin Telephone Company to issue $6,000,000 in common stock to be held at par value with which to pay for net additions and extensions to its property and plant. The company's balance sheet, presented to the commission, shows a book value of fixed capital amounting to $49,877,395.49, securities of $26,947,000, and capital stock of $300,200.

The utilities body also authorizes the Wisconsin Telephone Company to issue $35,000 first mortgage bonds, 15 year, 6 percent bonds, and one thousand shares of common stock to acquire the Hayward Telephone Company and Stone Lake Telephone Company. The commission considers the Hayward and Stone Lake properties to be $60,000.

Two public utilities companies, the Marquette Electric Company, and the Hillsboro Light and Power Company, are given permission to dissolve by the railroad commission.

Order is given to the Green Bay and Western Railroad Company to refund to O. H. Brown overcharges on 83 carload shipments of sand and gravel moving from Granite to New London and Stevens Point.

The commission orders the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad to install at its own expense automatic signaling and bell signals at railroad crossings on Youtst, Gould-st and Layard-ave in Racine, and to provide a crossing watchman at Gould-st.

CHANGES FATIGUE INTO NEW ENERGY

Changes restlessness into refreshing sleep

THIS is the new day magic of "DOUBLE MALTED" that has helped millions. They come in from a strenuous day, physically worn out, mentally dull... simply marking time until they can get to bed. Then a glass or two of Thompson's and the whole picture changes. Almost immediately.

Instant Energy

The cause is really simple. But the effects seem truly magical. Thompson's aids your natural processes of digestion. Thompson's actually digests four or five times its weight in starchy foods. It is this marvelous quality of Thompson's that is responsible for the alert minds and energetic bodies that its users enjoy. And of course when there is no tax upon your digestion, there is no tax upon the restfulness of your sleep.

Actually "DOUBLE MALTED" Thompson's is made by a scientific process. Unlike ordinary malted milk, it is double malted. That is why it is such a wonderful building food. It is rich in calcium and phosphorus, indispensable nourishment for firm teeth, strong bones and supple muscles.

30 Servings to Every Pound You can buy Thompson's at your nearest drug or grocery store. It is really one of the most economical quality foods you can buy.

Buy Thompson's today at your nearest druggist or grocer.

BUILD Sound Bodies!

JOHNSTON'S Graham Crackers are comparable in bone-building calcium content with such foods as milk, oatmeal and eggs. They're ideal for children and adults—with meals, for lunch. Serve them every day.

"Laugh! Clown, Laugh!"

This wonderful waltz is based on a melody from that favorite opera, "Pagliacci." Waring's Pennsylvanians handle it in their truly distinctive style. A striking vocal refrain tells the ironic tale of the clown. Every one who likes a slow, dreamy waltz will want this number for dancing. Come in and hear all of these new Victor Records-soon!

Book Of Knowledge

Kings of the Air

Eagles are the true kings of the air-the most majestic creatures that fly. The eagle that is shown on American currency is listed among the vultures, buzzards and other day birds of prey, and is a formidable ranger over land and lake. The birds live to a great age, perhaps a century. Here is pictured the Bald Eagle, national emblem of the United States.

It is an interesting sight to watch a Bald Eagle pursuing an Osprey and compelling the Osprey to drop his catch of fish.

Here is the white-tailed Sea Eagle that builds its nest on craggy peaks, remote from the haunts of man.

Shepherds tell stories of the experiences of lambs with these birds. But in general it is birds of the shore and sea that these giants snap up. The Sea Eagle has an eye like a telescope which sees into the mysteries of the deep; at the sight of the prize he hurls himself into the water and brings up a salmon or mackerel.

NEARBY
TOWNSSTATE DOCTORS AID IN BATTLE AGAINST DISEASE AMONG COWSWrightstown Herd Said to Be Victim of Hemorrhagic
Septicemia

Special to Post-Crescent.
Wrightstown—As the result of an outbreak of hemorrhagic septicemia in his Holstein herd, Frank Van Laanen a dairymen of this place, lost seven head in a few days and another herd in this vicinity owned by Edward Karner is being watched by state and local veterinarians. Dr. Britzen, assistant state veterinarian, inspected the herds and diagnosed the disease as hemorrhagic septicemia. He is treating the infected animals with an injection of serum and Dr. P. S. Kingston of De Pere is vaccinating healthy animals in the herds.

Hemorrhagic septicemia is caused by a germ that acts best after animals have been exposed in shipping or are poorly nourished. The disease develops rapidly and is accompanied with high fever, refusal of feed, swelling about the throat and tongue and often pneumonia. Treatment is usually useless after symptoms become well marked. Prevention by vaccination and removal of healthy from sick animals is suggested.

The Rev. B. Jacobs of Cooperstown visited with Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Jacobs Wednesday.

Mrs. Anton Berken visited at Kaukauna Wednesday.
Mrs. Mary Whitney entertained the Five Hundred club Wednesday evening. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. George Vanderheiden, Mrs. A. Vanderheiden and consolation to Mrs. M. Minney. Mrs. A. Berken will entertain the club next Tuesday.

Miss Frances Jacobs of Cooperstown visited several days with Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Jacobs.

MAINTAIN WARNINGS
AGAINST DIGGING UP
TREES AND SHRUBSDepartment of Agriculture to Continue Signboard Plan of Giving Notice

Madison—CP—A warning to the Wisconsin-touring visitor and the homesteader who is traveling through Wisconsin woods, not to dig up and transport trees and other plants was issued by the state department of agriculture today.

The department anticipated the rush of the nature lovers for small trees that they wish to take up to and in landscape plans around their homes.

The department wishes to prevent this practice for two reasons:

In the interests of conservation the trees should be left to grow.

Transportation often spreads such diseases as white pine blister rust, which threatens forests.

A contract has just been completed to have the departments road-side highway signs, erected two years ago by the highway commission, replaced.

The new method of warning the tourist against the unrestricted transportation of forest grown trees and shrubs, which was threatening to distribute plant diseases and insect pests, has attracted nation-wide interest, it was said in the department.

After trying paper and manilla posters the department erected a series of fifteen wooden signs along its most traveled highways. These, instead of being torn down and used for kindling as were many of the paper ones, have attracted popular attention and respect from visiting tourists and greatly reduced the movement of trees and unselected plants. State nursery inspection regulations cover the movement of trees, shrubs and plants for propagation, but it is not practical, so it decided to adopt this method of education and warning.

Through an arrangement with the Conservation Commission, all game wardens are deputized by the department of agriculture to stop tourists seen carrying trees and arrange either for their destruction or for sending them to Madison for inspection.

The department experts have found that while some of the stolen trees may survive a long automobile trip to the home of the tourist, most of them die before or after being transplanted and the tree is then lost to both the owner and the tourist.

Before the signs were erected, durable Groth, cousin of the groom, acted as best man. The bride was given a pure rose georgette dress, carried a shower bouquet of roses and baby breath. At noon a wedding dinner was served at the bride's home to immediate relatives and friends. In the afternoon the young couple departed on a two weeks auto trip through north and south Dakota. They will be at home to their friends in this city after June 15.

Fred Krause and Alvin Krause of New London were visitors in the city Thursday.

The department pointed out that single bundles of trees and shrubs can be shipped to the State Entomologist's office at Madison, express prepaid, and they will be inspected and if found free of dangerous pests and to include no stock prohibited movement by quarantines, will be forwarded to any address, express collect.

It was announced in the department that considerable sums were being spent by the state to preserve the

AT MUSIC FESTIVAL

Ripon—CP—Hundreds of high school boys and girls will be guests of Ripon college Saturday, at a second annual Music Festival of the Little Ten conference.

Featuring a chorus of over 200 voices, the affair is intended to stimulate musical interests among secondary schools with a minimum of emphasis on rivalry, Supt. W. R. Bussewitz, president of the conference, declares. Chorus numbers for boys alone, girls alone, and a mixed chorus are on the program.

The afternoon will be devoted to a contest of girls' glee clubs and boys' octettes. Theoretically, Dr. Brandel, field secretary of Ripon college, who is manager of the festival, announces that the winning organizations. Judges are Edgar B. Gordon, professor of public school music, University of Wisconsin; Carl J. Waterman, dean of the school of music, Lawrence college, and Carl McKee, professor of voice, Lawrence college. Prof. Harold Chamberlain, head of the school of music here, will direct the choruses.

A banquet for probably 300 students will be given by Ripon college as a feature of the celebration.

Trees from diseases which are found quite prevalent in the northern part of the state. On the basis of this statement, a plea was made that inasmuch as the department was seeking to restore, promote and keep in good growing condition the forests of the state, for the tourists and citizens, the tourists and Wisconsin residents should take all steps possible to conform to the department regulations on transportation.

Dusting of seven hundred acres of hemlock in Door co. with an airplane, using nearly eight tons of poison to kill the hemlock sawworm which was responsible for killing hundreds of valuable trees and threatened thousands of others, was cited as an illustration of the agricultural department's activities in attempting to control the limiting factors to reforestation.

A New Imported Rug With the Qualities of Finest Orientals

Priceless Oriental rugs woven during the 16th and 17th centuries are being reproduced on a new loom with such accuracy that the reproductions are scarcely distinguishable from the originals.

Fine, worsted yarns are woven into a strong, lustrous, seamless fabric with a high pile. The intricate patterns appear in the same rich, carefully blended colorings. Yet the cost of these is little more than that of the better grades of domestic rug.

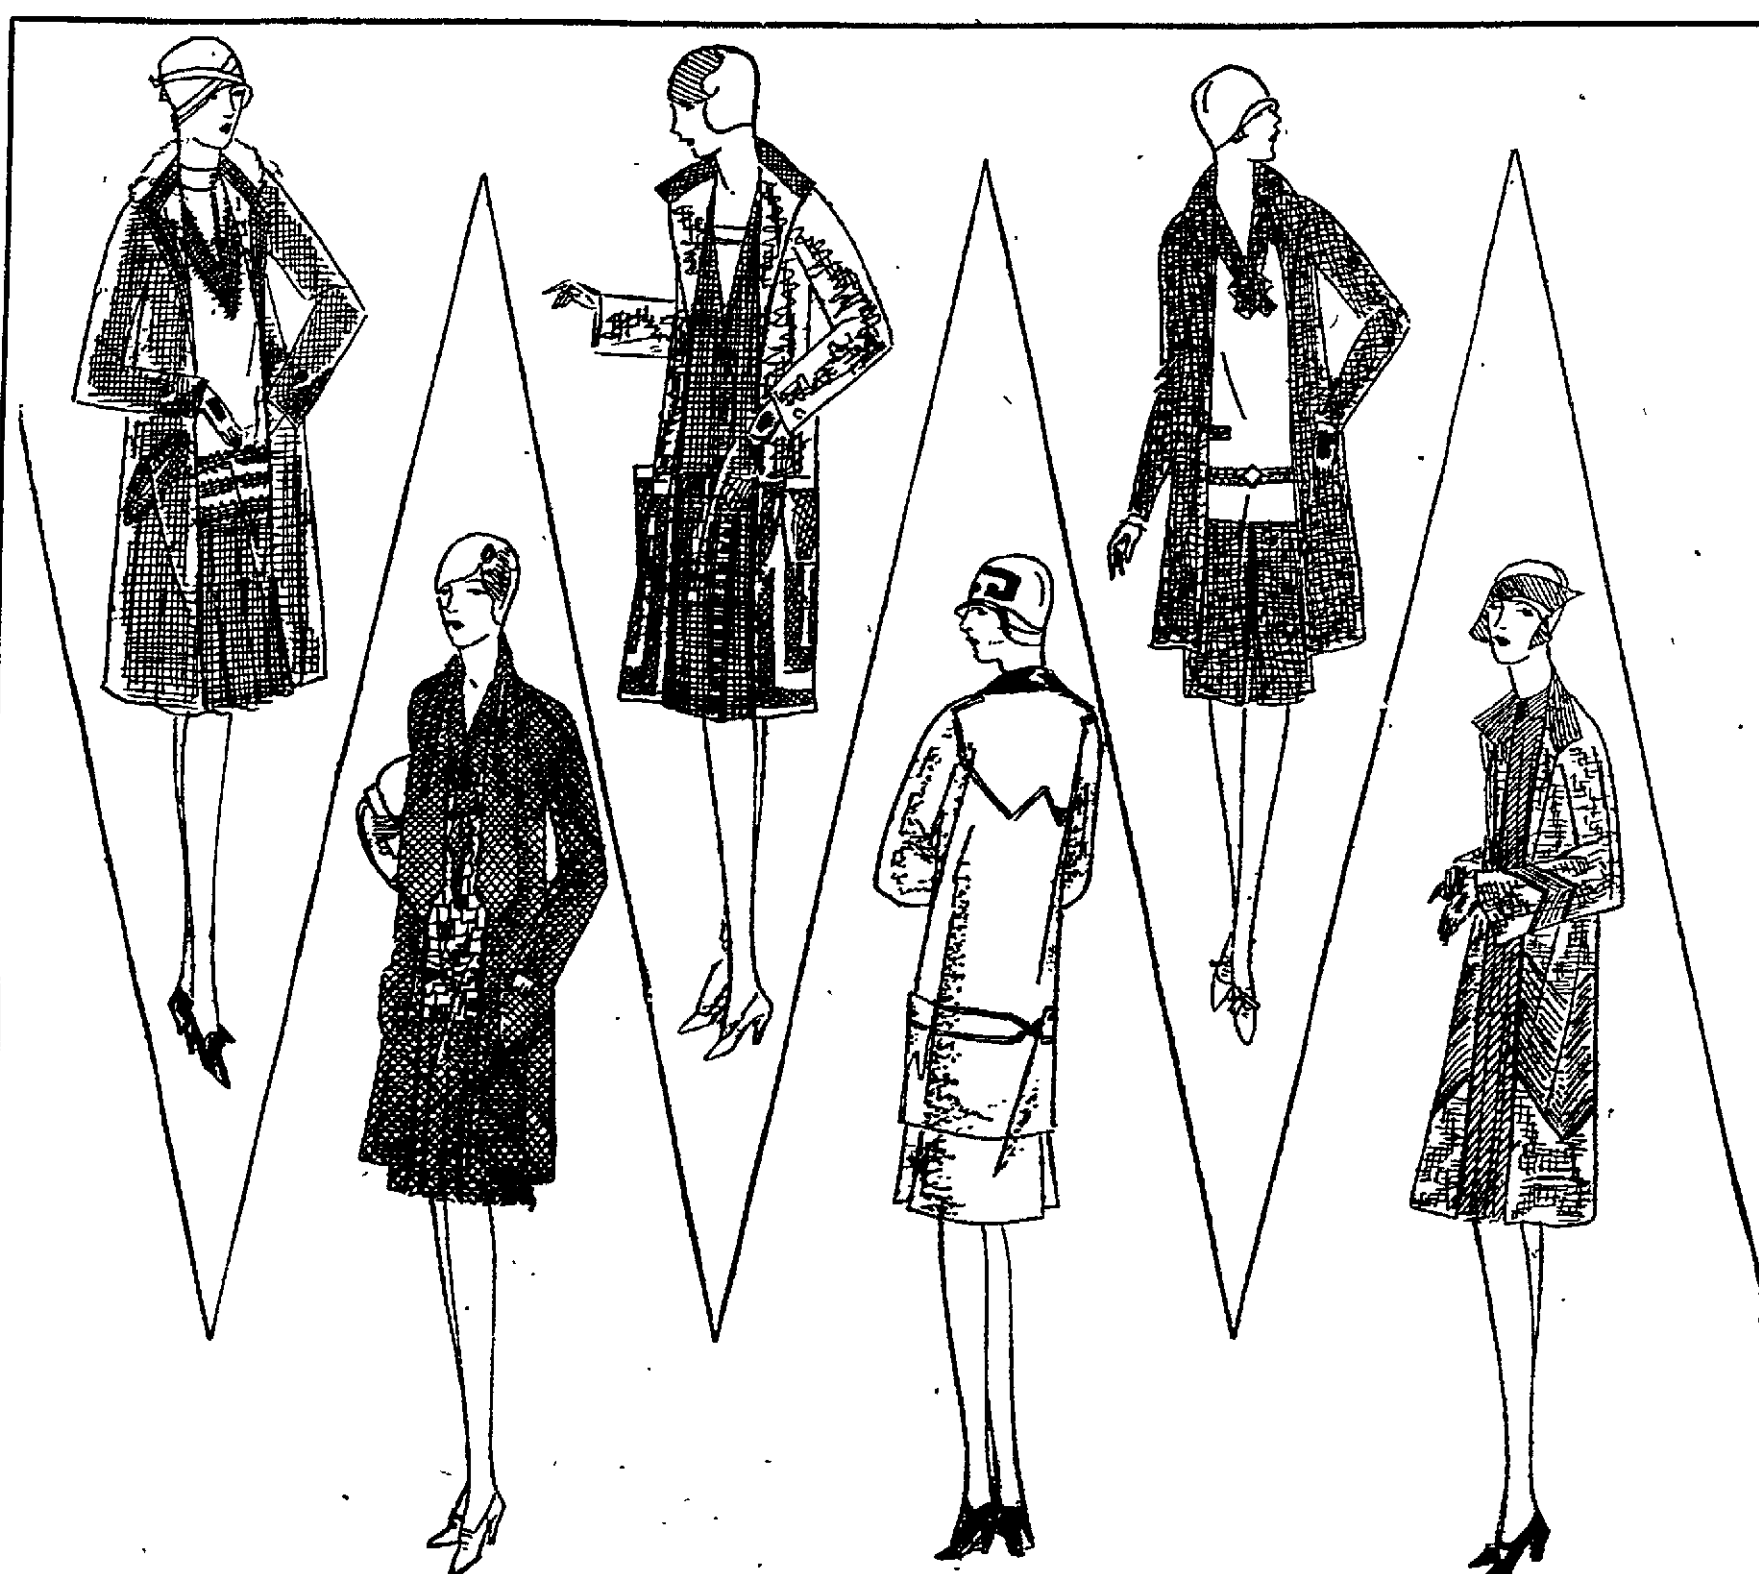

Ask to see these new rugs the next time you are in our store.
